More Rebuffs By Congress Are Expected For Truman

Reversals Predicted On Rent Control Bill, Taft Act Repeal and Wallgren Selection

By David McConnell
NYHT News Service

Congress appears ready to deal President Truman a series of sharp rebuffs, leading off this week with passage before present law expires Thursday of a rent control bill falling far short of the strong extension legislation the White House requested.

Despite the President's newly adopted conciliatory approach to the Eighty-first Congress, a coalition of Republicans and Democrats also is expected to ignore White House recommendations on such a wide variety of issues as labor legislation, taxation and a job for a personal friend.

While considerable opposition has developed to the $5,580,000,000 request to continue European aid, leaders predict that this bipartisan-backed program will be approved with only minor changes.

Rent Bill Up to Conference

The rent control law is expected to be whipped into shape today by Senate and House conferees. It ignores President Truman's requests for a provision for criminal penalties and a two-year extension of controls. Over the White House protests it also is expected to include provisions which may enable landlords in many cases to raise rents, and to carry a "local option" provision for rent decontrol.

As the measure stands, conferees have agreed to a 15-month extension but differ over inclusion of a "reasonable return" guaranty written into the House bill. The Senate version favored two automatic 5 per cent increases over the next year.

Representative Spence (D., Ky.) said he believes the conferees can "get together" today on a proposal guaranteeing landlords a "fair net operating income."

Expect Him to Sign It

Although the measure will be a far cry from the type of rent law President Truman sought, House and Senate leaders expect he will sign it rather than let controls expire. From a personal standpoint, however, members of the 81st Congress may be in for a taste of their own bill.

Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) has announced that he will seek to amend the District of Columbia control law to conform with the final version of the national law when it is reported out by Senate-House conferees. The national rent bill would return ceilings on hotel apartments in cities of 2,500,000 and over, a population provision

West's Chiefs On Way Here To Sign Pact

Sforza En Route By Plane, Others Due Wednesday On the Queen Mary

By Coleman B. Jones
NYHT News Service

Basic work on legislation to back up the North Atlantic Security Alliance with weapons neared completion yesterday as the Foreign Ministers of Canada and eight to ten European nations moved toward Washington for the signing of the pact April 4.

Several of the group are en route aboard the Queen Mary, which is due to reach New York sometime Wednesday. That group includes the British and Belgain Prime Ministers. Italy's foreign minister, Count Carlo Sforza, was reported to have left Paris by air last night shortly after the Italian senate had finally complete parliamentary approval of Italy's membership in the alliance.

The others are due to reach the United States by air in time for an initial meeting here Saturday with Secretary of State Acheson at which plans for treaty signing ceremonies are expected to be completed.

Chances for Discussion

This gathering will bring together the chief foreign policy spokesmen of the treaty nations—the United States, Great Britain, France, Canada, Norway, Belgium, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Italy and Denmark, with Iceland thought likely also to be represented among them and Portugal another possibility.

Their presence here is expected to provide important opportunities for discussion of a number of mutual problems bearing on the economic recovery and protection of western Europe. It also will give them a chance to weigh the support of and opposition to the treaty in Congress and the scope of doubts as to some of its provisions or actions contemplated by it.

Probably providing the chief focus for doubts in Congress is the separate legislation being prepared by the Administration to authorize the United States to help in the rearming of the western European allies.

Insist on Knowing Cost

The Administration plans to have this proposal before Congress while the Senate is considering ratification of the treaty, since many members will insist on knowing the economic as well as the political implications of United States membership in the alliance.

That bill is expected to call for authority to furnish one billion dollars to two billion dollars worth of supplies, chiefly from surplus stocks, to enable the European allies to rebuild their military strength, and some influential members of Congress who are not opposed to the treaty are hopeful that the figure will be kept lower.

In supporting the treaty and supplemental legislation on Capitol Hill, it was made clear yesterday, the Administration will emphasize that the alliance, like the European Recovery Program, is pri-

Tampa Area Ban on Gambling Reduces All Law Violations

By Bill Blalock
Special to The Washington Post

Tampa, Fla., March 27.—Gambling shutdowns in the Tampa area during the last four months have been accompanied by a drop in law violations generally, a check of police and sheriff's dockets shows.

This is reflected by comparison of arrests made during the recent winter months with those of the same period a year ago.

There were 3165 fewer arrests this lush tourist season than last in all categories ranging from traffic violators, drunks, and assaults to manslaughter and murder.

The lid was clamped on gambling, principally "Bolita," the local form of the numbers racket, at intervals dating back to the November general elections.

Since about January 1, the racket ban has been the tightest in Tampa's history.

Early shutdowns around election time were attributed to a change in State administration and a reshuffling of the local control.

Then on the heels of the elections came the gang-style murder of Jimmy Velasco, known as a "political fixer" for the underworld. Only the two brothers and widow of the slain gambler appeared at first concerned over the killing.

Investigation of the murder dragged. Velasco had been shot on a dark street as he entered his automobile with his wife and small daughter. His widow said she would know the assassin if she ever saw him again.

The Tampa Morning Tribune pounded away in editorials and a series of articles recounting a long history of similar unsolved gang killings.

The investigation was vigorously renewed. The grand jury inquired into the killing and gambling rackets. A man named Joe B. Provenzano was arrested and identified by the widow of the slain gambler. His trial is now getting under way.

P. Joseph Rodriguez, a member of the city board of representatives then brought out a list headed "payoff," containing names of eight city, county and State officials alongside sums of money.

Rodriguez said the paper was found among the records of the slain Velasco. He charged the listed public officials with bribery.

The grand jury launched an in-

New Threats Are Reported Delivered to Secret Agent

Miss Franklin Placed Under 24-Hour Vigil By 3 Operatives of Justice Department

Bernice Franklin, undercover agent and key witness in District Attorney Fay's gambling investigation, is under the 24-hour protective custody of three Justice Department employes, it was learned yesterday.

The red-headed waitress is lodged away from her Suitland, Md., home, after receiving threats of violence if she did not "keep her mouth shut."

At least one of the alleged threateners has been arrested and charged with intimidating a Government witness. He is Attilio Acalotti, who Fay says is a longtime curbside bootlegger and bookie.

Other Threats Received

But other threats have been received by Miss Franklin, according to a spokesman for Fay's office.

Decision to keep a 24-hour watch on the valuable witness was made Saturday, after Miss Franklin spent some time in Fay's office. She is still under subpena of the special grand jury investigating gambling, and "still willing to testify," Fay said.

Threats against Miss Franklin's person were described by Special Investigator Downey Rice as more evidence that District gamblers were feeling the heat of Fay's investigation, which has netted 30 suspects after eight raids Friday afternoon.

Meanwhile, the grand jury, which was ordered 10 months ago will reconvene at 10:30 this morning.

Fay is expected to:

1. Bring it up to date on the raids and arrests made since it last met Friday.
2. Present new evidence, including gambling equipment seized during the raids; a "truckload" of numbers slips, roulette wheels, and teletype machines.
3. Describe in detail the connection between District gamblers and the Nation-wide gambling syndicate which controls off-track horse race betting.
4. Present new witnesses including the men who arrested the alleged gamblers, and possibly some of those who were arrested.

Suspect Still at Large

One more gambling suspect, for whom a warrant has been issued, was not captured yesterday.

His arrest was expected some time today.

Rice yesterday described the United States Attorney's investigation of Pyramid Clubs as "the perfect smoke-screen" for his gambling inquiry.

"We got a lot of bad publicity", he said, "at a time when we would have preferred none at all. But the Pyramid Clubs put the spotlight on us so strong in the wrong direction that we were able to keep the gambling investigation in the dark."

Undemocratic Labor Bosses Face Probe

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Representative Andrew Jacobs, a freshman Democrat from Indiana, this week will quietly initiate an investigation of "undemocratic practices" in labor unions.

The 43-year-old former labor union attorney, although a newcomer to Capitol Hill, is one of the most ardent and articulate critics of the Taft-Hartley Act in the House, and is generally regarded as "pro-labor" in his views.

But Jacobs believes it is not enough to eliminate the Taft-Hartley Management-Labor Relations Act of 1947—universally opposed by organized labor.

Jacobs feels, with considerable intensity, that the Federal Government not only should protect the collective bargaining rights of unions, but also should protect the democratic rights of union members.

The Indianan asserts that legislation is needed to protect the rank and file members of unions against racketeering, bossism, autocracy, and other abuses. He would try to guarantee democratic processes within unions through legislation.

The issue of democracy in unions is not merely an academic question with the tall and rugged attorney, who represents Indianapolis and environs in Congress. He was a labor lawyer for nine years, and handled cases involving union corruption and other abuses of powers.

Jacobs stresses that these abuses are the exceptions, rather than the rule, and concentrated in relatively few of the unions. But he also feels that the undemocratic practices in unions are widespread enough to warrant congressional legislation.

"In fact," says Jacobs, "the only law I have in mind would be to lay

Pickets Boo 18,700 at Peace Parley

New York, March 27 (U.P.).—The "World Peace Conference" wound up with a hectic session at Madison Square Garden tonight where a capacity crowd of 18,700 passed a gantlet of 2000 shouting pickets to gain admittance.

The arena was a sellout, the audience paying 60 cents to $3.60 for admission, to hear fervent pleas for peace combined with bitter denunciations of Winston Churchill, the U. S. State Department, President Truman and the North Atlantic pact.

Late in the evening, while the hat was being passed for donations, a cameraman became engaged in an altercation with two members of the audience and, for a time, it appeared there might be violence.

But detectives led the cameraman and the two men quietly away. The audience settled back to the more peaceful pursuit of hearing Russian composer Dmitri Shostakovith play one of his selections on the piano. It was Shostakovitchs first appearance in the United States.

Shostakovitch played the second

American Stoned By Vienna Women Protesting Pact

Vienna, March 27 (U.P.).—Two British soldiers were beaten by Russian guards today and an American civilian was stoned and injured by women Communists demonstrating against the North Atlantic Treaty, officials reported.

Paul Mitchell, an American employed by the U. S. Army, suffered "painful lacerations" when his car was stoned as he attempted to drive past a column of marching women demonstrators.

Government Parties Win In French Vote

Paris (Monday) March 28 (U.P.).—Premier Henri Queuille's coalition government parties have scored their second decisive electoral victory in a week over both the Communists and rightist De Gaullists, almost complete official returns from Sunday's runoff county elections indicated today.

The official results for 640 of the 785 seats at stake, as announced by the Ministry of Interior were:

Government parties—326 (Socialists, 122, Popular Republicans, 59).

Gen. Charles de Gaulle's Rally of the French People (RPF) and affiliates—165.

Independent Rightists—92.

Independent Leftists—40.

Communists—17.

Yesterday's voting was for the 758 of the 1508 county council seats for which no candidate received an absolute majority last Sunday. Elections were on a straight plurality basis which had been expected to favor the governmental parties.

In last week's elections, the government claimed a total of 516 seats and 51.2 per cent of the popular vote. The Ministry of Interior returns gave the Communists 17 seats and 23.5 per cent of the popular vote, and the De Gaullists 170 seats and 25.3 of the popular vote. The De Gaullists, however, claimed a total of 275 seats.

Krug Stresses Need for Oil Substitutes

Secretary's Report Calls for Developing Coal, Water Power

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

The Nation's economic and military security depend upon more careful use of natural resources, Interior Secretary Krug reported yesterday to President Truman.

Unless development of resources is placed immediately on a basis of needs and availability rather than profit, he warned, a declining standard of living will result. In addition, he said, if oil imports were blocked by war, the United States would face a "transportation collapse."

Coal and "inexhaustible" water power, Krug said, should be used as far as possible for house heating and industrial purposes rather than oil. He urged early concentration on a synthetic oil program to replace oil now being rapidly used up and to serve as a power reservoir in case of war.

"Unless future generations are to face a declining standard of living," he said, "we must rely more heavily on our inexhaustible supplies, stop the waste of irreplaceable materials and find and develop

Storms Kill 28 In South and Injure 200

Homeless Counted In Scores, Property Damage Mounting

Little Rock, Ark., March 27 (AP).—Rural areas in six Southern States, hit by tornadic disturbances over the weekend, tonight counted their dead at 28, their injured at nearly 200 and their homeless in the scores. Property losses were mounting.

The trail of death and havoc that began in Louisiana and Mississippi Thursday night, ended in Mississippi and Tennessee Saturday night after slashing at Texas and Oklahoma and lacing a diagonal path across Arkansas during the day.

Tennessee joined the growing list of States smitten by storms when a twister struck Troy, little northwest Tennessee town last night, and Ripley yesterday.

Several persons were injured and heavy damage was reported at Troy. Four persons were hurt at Ripley.

The Red Cross announced in Washington it had made a preliminary allocation of $100,000 to aid the storm-stricken. Fifteen disaster workers in the area reported at least 300 homes had been wrecked or damaged.

Hardest-hit, apparently, was Arkansas, where 17 persons perished and at least 90 were hurt.

The casualty toll for the five other States for the 48-hour period:

Tennessee: Several injured.

Mississippi: Eight dead, 48 injured.

Oklahoma: 2 dead, 20 injured.

Texas: 1 dead 26 injured.

Louisiana: one injured.

Of the known dead, 22 were victims of Saturday's twisters.

Swirling winds battered Mississippi again last night. State Adj. Gen. William P. Wilson said four communities near Tupelo in the northwest section were struck. Tupelo escaped. One fatality was reported at Chesterville and another at Belden.

There were a few casualties and some property damage at Mount Vernon, Unity, Friendship and Palestine.

Wilson said Belden was virtually leveled.

Greenland-Based Plane Rescues 7 In Arctic Crash

Edmonton, March 27 (AP).—A terse message from inside the Arctic Circle said seven United States airmen were rescued late today from the waste of Ellesmere Island, 350 miles north of the magnetic pole.

A two-word message "evacuation successful" signalled the end of a four-day search for a United States Air Force C-82 cargo plane that crash-landed Thursday. The plane had been sighted yesterday.

The rescue was by a ski-equipped United States Air Force Dakota following a 1½ hour flight from Thule, Greenland.

The message made no mention of the condition of the rescued men.

Fire Bosses Start Inspections

Coal Miners Returning to Pits; Another Holiday Due Friday

Pittsburgh, March 28 (AP). (Monday).—Coal was mined east of the Mississippi today for the first time in two weeks.

Promptly at 12:01 a. m., some miners began the trip underground. It was the official end of the two week work-stoppage ordered by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, which idled 463,000 miners.

Most mines didn't schedule operations until the 6 a. m. shifts.

However, in Pennsylvania at least one pit reopened with the midnight shift. About 150 men were on the first shift.

Few mines have midnight shifts and most of those sent only fire bosses underground at midnight. John Busarello, president of District No. 5, of the United Mine Workers, said the fire bosses—men who check all workings in the mines to see that the pits are safe—would have the mines inspected in time for the 6 a.m. shifts.

Plenty of railroad cars were at the mines waiting for coal to haul again. During the stoppage some 70,000 rail workers were laid off.

Lewis called the stoppage two weeks ago as a memorial to miners killed and injured last year. He also termed it a protest against appointment of Dr. James Boyd as director of the United States Bureau of Mines.

The soft coal miners are expected to work only four days this week, taking Friday off to observe John Mitchell Day. Mitchell, a UMW leader many years ago, is credited by the miners with having helped to establish the eight-hour day.

Demand-Supply Gap Narrows

Steel Allocations Are Slashed As 'Scarce Metal' Prices Fall

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The steadily narrowing gap between supply of and demand for basic commodities was emphasized the past week in two developments in the metals industry:

1. The Commerce Department announced a drastic reduction in the allocations of steel beginning in June.

2. Prices of heretofore scarce metals, zinc, lead, copper, etc., and their scrap, have shown a distinct softening in the Nation's chief markets, with continuing reports that even quoted prices are being cut by many dealers.

In February the Commerce allocations of steel under the voluntary agreement program amounted to 539,046 tons. This will be cut in June to 388,417 tons—a reduction of 150,629 tons or 27 per cent.

In the meantime, four new allocation categories will go into operation calling for a total of new set-asides of 56,000 tons. These are for (1) Economic Cooperation countries, (2) baseboard radiation, (3) farm-type grain bins for grain storage, and (4) Federal reclamation projects.

The biggest cut in the voluntary allocation of steel is for freight cars. In February 247,000 tons were set aside for that purpose. In June this will be cut to 175,000. Set-asides for the Armed Forces will be reduced from 102,505 tons in February to 64,371 in June.

The reduction in the allocations does not mean that steel going to the industries involved will be reduced. It means that those industries, freight car builders, the Armed Services, the Atomic Energy Commission, etc., are now able to buy what they need in the outside market, free from the red tape and negotiations necessary to buy through the allocations program.

There are other indications, however, that former large steel consumers, with previously high priorities, are trimming their patterns. One of these, as an instance, is railroad equipment. One steel expert, just back from a trip through the freight car building areas, reported yesterday that not only are railroads cutting back their orders for new rolling stock, but in one case at least, a road was offering sales from its inventory.

These developments indicate that two steps in President Truman's economic program are in for far less consideration in Congress than they seemed sure of two months ago. In his State of the Union message of January 4, Mr.

Russian Doctor Arrested as Spy By Argentines

Buenos Aires, Argentina, March 27 (U.P.).—Police charged today that a middle-aged Russian doctor was a member of a "vast network of foreign spies" operating in Argentina.

Dr. Jan Matwieyev, 52, was arrested yesterday on suspicion of smuggling. A search of his belongings disclosed 500 cigarette lighters valued at about $1260, and a variety of electrical equipment, all believed to have been smuggled into the country.

Searchers also found plans of the public works ministry and the national sanitation department, charts tracing Buenos Aires' principal water mains, and notebooks filled with writing in code.

Honored in the Breach

Tradition of Bipartisan Choice Of D. C. Heads Often Flouted

By Chalmers Roberts
Post Reporter

The "tradition" that the President appoints the two civilian District Commissioners to represent the two major political parties is one of those things honored more in the breach than the observance.

A look at the record reveals:

1. In the 71 years Washington has had its present form of government, both parties were represented during some 45 years. In the other 25 years (1 year is not included due to vacancies), the 2 members either were of the same party, or one or both of them was nonpartisan—had no party tie.

2. Since 1900, the board has been bipartisan almost exactly half the time. The rest of the time it had either two Republican, two Democratic or one or two nonparty members.

Thus it appears that President Truman, in considering the appointment of a commissioner when the term of John Russell Young expires May 17, is not bound by tradition to choose a man or woman of any particular political affiliation. Young is a Republican, the other civilian commissioner, Guy Mason, a Democrat.

These are the facts:

Since 1876, 32 men and one woman have served as civilian commissioners (the law requires the third commissioner to be an Army officer). The woman was the late Miss Mabel Boardman, long a

U. S. Possessions Free From Red Threat, Krug Says

By The Associated Press

Secretary of the Interior Krug said yesterday that communism "has fallen completely flat" in American overseas possessions.

"Even in Puerto Rico, with its very low income standard and widespread poverty, this is the case," he said.

Krug appeared on a round table radio broadcast with Joseph C. Satterthwaite, director of the State Department's office of Near Eastern and African Affairs; and Francis B. Sayre, American representative of the United Nations Trusteeship Council.

Krug said there is "no evidence" of an active Communist movement in Alaska or the Virgin Islands.

"There has been a little talk of a Communist group in Hawaii," he added, "but no indication whatever of dangerous infiltration, or any dent in the loyalty and stability of the people."

Italy Senate Vote Assures Pact Entry

Rome, March 27 (AP).—The Italian Senate tonight gave the government full parliamentary approval to join the North Atlantic defense alliance.

Ending 50 hours of stormy debate, the Senate voted 188 to 112 in favor of the treaty.

The Chamber of Deputies approved the treaty 342 to 170 on March 18. Foreign Minister Count Carlo Sforza already is en route to Washington to sign the treaty for Italy. He left Paris by plane tonight for the United States. The signing ceremony is scheduled for a week from Monday.

Socialist Senator Carmine Mancinelli demanded after tonight's vote that the government prove the peaceful purposes of the Atlantic treaty and negotiate treaties of friendship with Russia and the "popular democracies."

Premier Alcide de Gasperi replied he would consider such pacts only after Russia permitted Italy's entry into the United Nations. Russian vetoes thus far have blocked Italian membership in the U. N.

U. N. Unit Reports

Ruhr Miners Set Record in Coal Output

Geneva, Switzerland, March 27 (U.P.).—Ruhr miners set postwar record highs in their average daily coal output, and production increased in every other major coal producing country in Europe during February, the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe reported today.

U. N. experts here claim Europe's postwar coal production problem is now practically solved. Trade and payment difficulties still represent a major obstacle, however, and will result in nearly two million tons of exportable surplus coal being left in Belgium, Poland and Italy during the second quarter of 1949.

The monthly coal survey showed that western German miners averaged 328,000 tons of coal a day during February.

Average daily output of coal in Poland rose from 229,000 in January to 235,000 tons last month. It increased in France from 182,000 to 184,000 tons and in the Netherlands from 39,000 tons to 41,000 tons.

Aeromedical Unit Ordered

By the United Press

Defense Secretary James Forrestal yesterday approved consolidation and standardization of Air Force and Naval Aviation medical training in one aeromedical center.

But he directed that establishment of the center be delayed until it is determined whether the Air Force or the Air Force and Navy jointly should run the unified setup.

Parts of the program ordered put into effect now include:

1. Consolidation of training of both Air Force and Navy flight nurses at the Air Force School of Aviation Medicine, Randolph Air Base, Tex.

2. Establishment of the same physical standards for both Air Force and Navy flight students. Psychological tests will not be standardized now.

3. Air Force adoption of the Navy plan for combining into one course the training of air evacuation technicians, flight surgeon's assistants, and enlisted technical personnel.

Supreme Court To Hear Eisler Appeal Today

By the United Press

Lawyers for Gerhart Eisler, who has been labelled No. 1 Communist in the United States, go before the Supreme Court today to urge reversal of his conviction for contempt of Congress.

Eisler, who calls himself a German Communist, is free on bond during appeal of the conviction which carried a one-year jail sentence and a $1000 fine.

He was indicted after he was brought before the House Un-American Activities Committee February 6, 1947, and refused to be sworn unless first allowed to make a statement.

He claims he is a "political prisoner" and cannot be compelled to testify against his wishes.

Work on Pact Nears Finish

marily a mutual-assistance plan with the United States called upon to make up military deficiencies which the other allies, much more severly damaged by the war, are still unable to overcome by themselves.

The pact will be stressed as subsidiary to the European Recovery Program—a means to enable the western European nations, through joint action, to protect what they are able to gain from economic recovery.

The related advantages which the signing of the pact in the Inter-Departmental Auditorium at 3 p. m., April 4, will produce by bringing the 10 to 12 prime ministers together in Washington will be effected in various ways.

The French Embassy, for example, has arranged a major social function in honor of Prime Minister Schuman. Chances for the foreign visitors to make their views clear to the American public will be offered at a National Press Club luncheon Friday for Prime Minister Bevin of Britain. Many other opportunities will be found for the visitors to express themselves publicly and to talk together privately.

The more or less private, informal meetings among the foreign ministers will enable them to advance basic discussions looking to future agreements on pressing problems in Europe which are uppermost in their official minds.

These include top-level differences over details of what to do about western Germany, the desirability of negotiating other non-Communist regional alliances in such areas as the Pacific, the Near East and the Mediterranean, and what stand to take in the United Nations on the future control of the former Italian colonies.

Similarly, questions more directly concerned with the functioning of the Atlantic Pact, having to do with the nature and scope of the mutual defense machinery, will be discussed.

East Berlin Police Pledged To Give Russians Aid in War

Berlin, March 27 (AP).—Two leaders of Eastern Berlin's police force declared today the German policemen under their command would fight on the side of the Soviet Union in the event of war between Russia and the western powers.

The pledge was made by Police Chief Paul Markgraf and Assistant Chief Hans Lehmann. Communists control the German police in the city's Russian sector.

Speaking at a meeting of policemen, Lehmann said: "We pledge ourselves to fight with all our strength at the side of the Soviet Union if the American and British monopoly-capitalists attack."

Markgraf said: "In Berlin the fight between the reactionaries and the progressive forces comes in clearest focus. The people's police stand firmly on the side of the people and the Soviet Union."

Meanwhile, the Russians announced that they planned to speed up the repatriation of German prisoners of war by sending home another 50,000 by the end of April. The Communist press said the returning prisoners had become converts to the Communist program in Germany.

Moscow failed to keep its promise to return all prisoners by the end of 1948. The western powers estimate the Russians still hold at least 200,000 Germans.

German Papers Attack Switch of Territory

Berlin, March 27 (U.P.).—German editorial writers and politicians arose almost as one today to condemn the western Germany border changes announced yesterday by Britain, France and the United States.

The American-licensed Neue Zeitung, one of the few exceptions, said the 52 square miles being given Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg is 850 times smaller than the area separated from east Germany by the Russians.

The Soviet military government organ Tagliche Rundschau did not mention the changes, but other Russian-licensed newspapers headlined the story "Thieves in the West" and "Brutal Act of Force on Western Border."

Wallace Puts Cost of Pact At 30 Billion

New York, March 27 (AP).—Henry Wallace, attacking the North Atlantic Pact, said today it would cost the United States "up to 30 billions of dollars" to rearm western Europe.

In a broadcast over the Columbia Broadcasting System network, Wallace charged the State Department and the Army would try "to conceal this fantastic cost from the American people."

He urged that the money be used, instead, to build low-cost homes, to insure every person against unemployment, illness and old age, to raise minimum wages and to provide schools and hospitals for all.

The broadcast time was given Wallace at his request to reply to Secretary of State Dean Acheson's speech of March 18, announcing the pact's contents.

(Acheson denounced "allegations that this treaty conceals aggressive designs." He gave no estimate of its cost but said, "We will carefully balance the military assistance with the capacity and requirements of the total economy, both at home and abroad.")

Wallace, the Progressive Party's presidential candidate in last fall's election, said the "clear intention" of the pact is to take the place of the United Nations.

Declaring that the treaty, stripped of legal verbiage," would set up United States Army bases near the borders of the Soviet Union, he said "we cannot afford to forget Russian history."

"In the last 25 years," he said, "they have been attacked by foreign armies five separate times. Does anyone imagine that, as they stare across their borders at our jet bombers and cannon, calm visions of peace will be born in their minds?"

Asserting that the pact will force all Europe to rearm and that this will impoverish Europe, Wallace said it will "put us on a war footing."

Congressman Hears Atomic Spies Escaped

Chicago, March 27 (AP).—Representative Velde (R., Ill.), a former FBI agent, said tonight he understands that "several of the most dangerous members of a Communist atomic spy ring have escaped from the country."

He said he is urging that the House Un-American Activities Committee reopen its investigation of the atomic spy and the "Scientist X" cases.

The freshman Representative from Pekin, Ill., is a member of the committee.

movement from his own Fifth Symphony. The entire audience stayed until midnight to hear him.

Hundreds of police officers guarded the arena as Catholic and Jewish groups, war veterans and other organizations climaxed the demonstrations they had held for three days at Carnegie Hall and the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

The rally was dramatically opened with the voice of a radio operator trying vainly to reach London, Brazil, Rome, Calcutta, Mexico City and other capitals from which would-be delegates were barred by the State Department.

Then Actor Sam Wanamaker introduced the foreign delegates and the crowd roared its approval as one of the Poles and two of the Russian delegates raised their fists in the Communist salute.

The conference wound up its panel sessions in the afternoon with a speech by A. A. Fadeev, head of the Soviet delegation and a wild response to his speech.

Fadeev, head of the Soviet Writers Union, sharply denied the assertion of an American college professor that Russia was as much to blame as the United States for the current drift toward war. He was obviously irked by the statement of Dr. Frederick L. Schuman, professor of political science at Williams College, who had said both nations were suffering from "paranoia"—evading their own faults by shouting warmonger at the other.

Fadeev said he was astonished at "certain aspects" of Schuman's speech and asserted "there are no elements in our country which desire war against the United States or any other country."

His defense of the Soviet Union brought a wildly enthusiastic response from the crowd of 2500 gathered in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel for a plenary session which was the last meeting of the parley—except for mass rally in Madison Square Garden tonight.

After Schuman had spoken, Fadeev hurried to the microphone and spoke extemporaneously.

"Professor Schuman indicated that in his opinion there are elements in the Soviet Union which are to some extent responsible for the menace to the peace, just as he feels there are elements in the United States also responsible," he said.

"I am a guest in your country, but I know that you would want me to speak frankly on this matter. Professor Schuman is mistaken. There are no elements in our country which desire war against the United States or any other country."

The session passed two resolutions after booing down a man who rose from the audience to ask who was speaking for the United States at the conference. Chairman Harlow Shapley, Harvard astronomer, ruled him out of order, saying he wanted to "keep passion out of this."

The first resolution called for strengthening the United Nations as the best hope for peace and for cooperation by this group with other peace movements throughout the world.

A second resolution, whose preamble denounced race discrimination, anti-Semitism, the trial of political groups, and other barbs obviously aimed at the United States, called for cultural freedom.

At a morning session, the conference heard Shostakovich, Russia's best known contemporary composer, make a humble apology for his failure to reach the "masses" with his recent music and promise to do better in the future.

One of seven Russian composers under sharp fire from the Communist Central Committee, Shostakovich repeated the self-criticism he had expressed in Moscow recently and asserted that it was the right of the state, reflecting the will of the people, to tell artists what is wrong with their work.

Deserter Flays Red Propagandists in U. S.

New York, March 27 (NYHT).—Peter Pirogov, former Red army pilot who said he was "forced to leave the country I love," denounced Communist propagandists in the United States in a fiery speech today.

He spoke at a meeting of 500 persons in the City Center Casino, sponsored by the Russian League for People's Freedom.

Pirogov, who with a companion flew his plane from the Ukraine into the American zone of Austria some months ago, attacked Communist propagandists in this country as the Russian equivalent of "S. O. B.s."

New Guided Missile Now In Production

Baltimore, March 27 (U.P.).—Planemaker Glenn L. Martin revealed yesterday that his company is producing a new type guided missile for the Air Force.

He refused to discuss the project in detail, but said it is expected to be "an important step forward" in the development of new weapons for national defense.

Martin also revealed that:

1. A new Air Force bomber of "revolutionary design" is taking shape in the company's drafting rooms and experimental shops.

2. The first tests of the "Viking rocket," designed for experimental use by the Navy in the ionosphere, will be held soon at a secret Government proving grounds.

In a statement to be presented to the company's annual stockholders' meeting April 12, Martin mentioned the new missile . . . said he could not discuss it in detail because of Air Force restrictions.

His statement described it as a "production project," but did not say whether full-scale production was under way. As far as is known, there is no quantity production yet on any of the rockets or guided missiles for the military forces.

Most of Martin's statement was devoted to a review of the company's financial position. He said the firm operated at a net loss of $16,710,762 last year, with net sales of $72,686,527.

As of December 31, 1948, it said, the company had a backlog of unfilled orders, largely of military airplanes amounting to $88,907,141.

Martin said the company showed an operating profit for military sales during 1948 but this was offset by losses on commercial planes and in the chemical division.

"This was due in part to establishment of a valuation reserve of $12,750,000 to reduce Model 2-0-2 transport plane inventories to their estimated realizable value," Martin said. Production of the 2-0-2 was halted until "such time as solution of airline problems results in firm orders."

Martin said Maple T. Harl, Washington, D. C., chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, and Everett H. Pixley, Pittsburgh, Pa., Mellon National Bank & Trust Co. vice president, were nominated to fill vacancies on the board of directors.

Yugoslavs Round Up Albanians as Spies

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, March 27 (U.P.).—Yugoslavia has arrested a "great number" of Albanian army officers and security police as spies, the Communist Party newspaper Borba disclosed today.

Borba implied the Albanians will be tried soon in retaliation for the current Albanian trial of Yugoslav espionage suspects in Tirana.

The disclosure came as relations between the two Communist states continued to grow worse. A communique last night charged an Albanian plane had violated Yugoslav sovereignty by dropping propaganda leaflets in Montenegro.

Borba implied Albania had rushed the Yugoslavs into trial in Tirana to take the edge off the coming trial of Albanians here.

The Tirana trial was organized by Albanian authorities because they were "quite conscious that very soon these spies and the material actually in the hands of Yugoslav authorities would completely reveal their activity against Yugoslavia," Borba asserted.

Death Penalty Asked In Albanian Spy Trial

London, March 27 (AP).—The Albanian Radio reported today that the state prosecutor has demanded the death penalty for Hussein Edini, alleged ringleader of a group of 14 people in Tirana on charges of terrorism and spying for Yugoslavia.

Prison sentences ranging from two years to life were asked for the other defendants, it said. The trial began last Monday.

One of the offenses the 14 are accused of is helping Kochi Dodze, former secretary of the Albanian Communist Party, escape to Yugoslavia after the Cominform denounced Marshal Tito.

D. C. Is Host To Bishop Of Lourdes

The Washington Post

THE MOST REV. PIERRE MARIE THEAS,
. . . Bishop of Lourdes

The Bishop of Lourdes, France, who was imprisoned during the war for defending Jews from the Nazis, arrived in Washington yesterday on the last lap of a tour of the United States.

The bishop, the Most Rev. Pierre M. Theas, was accompanied on his trip by Canon Louis Larribere, secretary-general of the Shrine of Lourdes. Canon Larribere acted as spokesman for the bishop, who speaks no English.

Canon Larribere said the bishop wanted to express his thanks to American troops who liberated him from a concentration camp at Compeigne, France, in August, 1944. Three months earlier, the bishop was arrested by the Gestapo for sheltering Jewish families in the homes of members of his church.

Lourdes has been visited by more pilgrims in the years since the war than ever before, the canon said. More than a million pilgrims visited the shrine last year, he said. Of 18,300 sick who went there 84 were cured, he declared.

Both the bishop and Canon Larribere said they had been "delighted" with their reception in America. The canon commented that the Catholic church here seems very active and progressive and praised the ability of the church to build schools and to maintain colleges and universities.

In spite of the great crowds of pilgrims which visit Lourdes during the months from March to October, sometimes at a rate of more than 60,000 a day, the city has been able to meet most of the needs of its guests. Food is available to all who can buy it, and the government makes special railroad provisions.

The bishop is also director general of Pax Christi, a movement in which members say daily prayers for world peace.

Last night the bishop spoke to students of Catholic University. He expects to confer with Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen, the Most Rev. Amletto Giovanni Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, and French Ambassador Henri Bonnet before leaving for New York Tuesday to fly back to France Wednesday. While in Washington he is staying at the Provincial residence of Holy Ghost Fathers, 1615 Manchester la., nw.

Russians Call Finn 'Wolf Hunt' Military Move

Moscow, March 27 (AP).—The army newspaper Red Star said today Finns hunting for wolves in Lapland actually were looking for a suitable place for a military base close to the Russian northland. The United States, Norway and Britain all were accused of complicity.

"The participation of Anglo-American observers is understandable, as is the alarm of honest people in Finland," the account said. "The fairy stories of Finnish reactionaries deceived no one."

The Russians have been drumming away at the Finnish government of Premier Karl A. Fagerholm, who had excluded Communists. And for the past four or five days, Moscow newspapers have printed daily dispatches on a recent wolf hunt in Finnish Lapland, which adjoins the Russion border.

U. S. Bomber, 4 Aboard, Wrecked on Fujiyama

Tokyo (Monday), March 28 (AP).—An American B-26 light bomber with four men aboard crashed into Fujiyama, Japan's highest peak, yesterday afternoon, Far East Air Force headquarters announced today.

Ground troops near the famed 12,388-foot mountain saw the plane and heard it crash.

Soviet Trade Paper Denounces U. S. Catholics

Moscow, March 27 (U.P.).—The official Soviet trade union newspaper Trud denounced the U. S. Catholic Church today as one of the most active instruments of Americans seeking world domination.

It charged that Catholic emissaries in some parts of the world were helping the United States unite local "reactionary forces" and accused the Vatican of cooperating with the United States in intelligence work.

Trud said that the Catholic Church in America was tied in with Wall Street financiers and that it coordinated its activities with American foreign policy. It accused American Catholics of spending millions of dollars in Germany to spread anti-Communist propaganda.

The newspaper said American Catholics cooperated with American "reactionaries" in seeking to install Heinrich Bruening as premier of a western German state. Trud denounced Bruening as the "executioner of the Weimar Republic."

(Bruening a former Reichschancellor is a professor at Harvard.)

"The Vatican openly supports Bruening," Trud declared, "and American reaction in the person of John Foster Dulles, Herbert Hoover, (Ambassador) Robert Murphy and Cardinal Spellman consider Bruening an ideal candidate."

It said that since the war "there has been a growing merger between the Catholic Church and the United States ruling circles." Illustrating this assertion Trud cited important Government posts held by Catholics:

Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin, Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan and Msgr. Edmund A. Walsh, vice president of Georgetown University who was a member of the special presidential commission which recommended enactment of universal military training.

Trud said the church operates a special university in Washington, for training Government officials.

It also charged that American Catholics in 1947 spent $250 billion in Germany for anti-Communist propaganda.

Truman Goes To Church, Aids Relief

President Truman yesterday joined millions of other Americans in attending church and contributing for world relief.

Saturday night the President spoke over a radio program, "One Great Hour," urging people to go to church Sunday and give for relief. The program was sponsored by the major Protestant groups, Roman Catholics, and Russian, Romanian and Eastern-Serbian orthodox churches.

Mr. Truman attended First Baptist Church, 16th and O sts. nw. Each participating denomination in 76,000 churches throughout the Nation will distribute funds through its own established relief agencies.

The Rev. Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, pastor of First Baptist Church, used as his text: "I will pray the Father and He shall give you another comforter."

In Roman Catholic Churches the day, known as Laetare Sunday—the middle Sunday of Lent—was set aside for contributions to the Bishops' Fund for Victims of the War. National goal of the drive is five million dollars. The Washington archdiocese quota is $75,000.

At the Washington Cathedral, the Rev. Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, pointed out that very Christian's neighborhood today is "global in dimensions."

"Volunteer gifts of the people of America to the people of Europe and Asia do more to develop and cement international friendship than any one other thing that can be done today," he said.

"Christ expects us to keep awake and alert in this hour when He is in danger of being betrayed again by money-seeking materialism, easy-going secularism, pleasure-loving hedonism," the Rev. Dr. Carl Heath Kopf said at First Congregational Church, 10th and G sts. nw.

"Wherever our Christian missionaries are upheld by our gifts in the churches of America, there the purpose of 'One Great Hour' is fulfilled," he said.

Chinese Peace Group to See Chiang Before Meeting Reds

Nanking, March 27 (U.P.).—A government delegation which begins peace talks with the Communists in Peiping Friday will confer first with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, it was a reliably reported today.

It was said the delegation would visit Chikow, where Chiang is in retirement as President, to ask him "out of courtesy" for his opinions on the talks. Government sources said this would be done only to show respect for Chiang, although the Communist radio has insisted that Chiang still controls the government.

The government appeared under no delusions as to the severity of the Communist terms — which amount to a demand for unconditional surrender. Shao Li-tze, one of the government delegates, and a stout peace advocate, admitted prospects were dim as long as the Communists insist on their original eight conditions.

One source said Li Chun-lung, vice minister of Kuomintang propaganda, was slated for appointment as the delegation's secretary-general. He is a brother of one of the Communist's peace delegates, Li Wei-han.

April CIO-AFL Pact Hoped For by Carey

James Carey, CIO secretary-treasurer, said yesterday he hopes the AFL and CIO will reach an agreement by April 7 which will allow formation of a new anti-Communist World Federation of Labor.

He made the statement after a luncheon meeting with a group of British Trades Union Congress officials who have been acting as mediators between the two United States labor groups in an effort to launch the new world labor body.

The AFL is said to be insisting that the CIO rejoin the AFL as its price of full participation in the new organization, which would be a rival of the Comunist-dominated World Federation of Trade Unions which the AFL and CIO quit early this year.

Carey said it is impossible to comment in detail without endangering progress that has been made. Asked whether he thinks an agreement possible, he said, "It may well be, and we should know by April 7."

TALK IT OVER—DeReefe Dollbar Saunders (extreme right) talks it over with police after a raid in the 2000 block of Sales pl. se., yesterday delivered up the first still found in this section in 17 years. Two Arrested In Southeast Raid on Still Police raided a still in Southeast Washington yesterday and arrested DeReefe Dollbar Saunders, 49, and Esther Vernice Coates, 40, on charges of illegally manufacturing, possessing and selling whisky.

The still, in a shack in the woods of 2653 Sales pl. se., was the first found in this section in 17 years, police said.

Pvt. W. H. Fallin and Detectives T. P. Denton and G. B. Colbert, all in plain clothes, said they found six bubbling 50-gallon barrels of mash, a 50-gallon copper still, and six half-gallon jugs of clear colorless moonshine.

The mash consisted of water, sugar and rye, Fallin said.

Fallin and an undercover agent had been working on the case for some time, and the agent bought a pint for $2.25, police said.

Saunders was released under $1500 bond for appearance before the U. S. Commissioner this morning. The woman was released under $1000 bond.

Fallin said he would take the seized whisky for analysis.

Saunders was quoted as telling Fallin the liquid was "good stuff, good rye."

Undemocratic Labor Unions Facing Probe

down in statute what is already the common law of the land.

The common law, Jacobs points out, does protect union members from certain abuses—such as arbitrary expulsion—but it requires a long, tedious and expensive court battle to obtain such protection. Instead, Jacobs would spell out the rights, and place the enforcement power in the hands of the National Labor Relations Board, which is more familiar and expert in labor matters than the courts.

Union leaders have traditionally opposed legislation—Federal or State—dealing with the internal affairs of unions. Even the leaders of unions recognized for their democratic processes shy away from assuring rank and file rights by statute.

Duing the recent House Labor Committee hearings on labor legislation, Jacobs asked William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; Harvey Brown, president of the International Association of Machinists, and Woodruff Randolph, president of the International Typographical Union, how they felt about a law to protect union members.

The trio declared, in separate ways, that they didn't like the idea at all. Brown, whose machinists' union is proud of its democratic tradition, replied to Jacobs' question as follows:

"I personally would oppose any kind of legislation that would interfere with the operations of trade unions, for this reason: Wherever there appears to be an absence of democratic action, or freedom of action, I would say that it is very apparent that that kind of practice meets with the approval of the majority.

"If the majority wishes to change the policies of the union, regardless of what the structure of that union is, I contend the majority can find some way to make known their position and change the policies of the union, if they so desire.

"There is a danger, a great danger, to the labor movement when the Government attempts to correct union policies by legislation, because, after all, it is not so much what kind of law you have; it depends on how it is administered."

Under further question by Jacobs, IAM President Brown responded:

"Mr. Congressman, I would say that rather than have the Government enact legislation that would apply to the entire labor movement, I would say that it would be far better for a local union to continue to suffer until the rank and file of that international union woke up. This is one of the unfortunate things in free competitive enterprise."

Jacobs is cognizant of the general antipathy of labor leaders to the kind of law he is thinking about, but he also feels that while some labor leaders will actively oppose him, most of the rank and filers will applaud and support him.

He knows, too, that the very abuses of unionism which he intends to fight have been seized upon by the extreme critics of organized labor to support various provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act.

On this point, Jacobs is emphatic. He insists that the Taft-Hartley law does not regulate the "use, misuse or abuse" of the labor leader's power in respect to the rank and file; but instead, curbs the power of the labor leaders "as it was pitted against the greater power of the employer for the benefit of the individual members."

The architects of the Taft-Hartley Act, Jacobs asserts, seized upon abuses of unionism to justify their provisions — "provisions which do not strengthen or sustain decency, democracy, or justice in unions, but which add further burdens to break them down."

"The workers in those few unions that abuse democratic processes would welcome legislation affording remedies," Jacobs declares, "but they don't want their union destroyed."

Jacobs stresses that he is off on no witch-hunt, that he simply wants to cleanse the offending unions of abuses and thereby strengthen them for their primary objective of collective bargaining. The way things are today, according to Jacobs, it's a fairly easy proposition for an "unfair employer" to come to mutually favorable terms with a "labor dictator."

The former labor attorney would seek to guarantee democratic rights for union members through legislation that would provide:

1. Secret elections in local unions, including election of delegates to national or international conventions.

2. A remedy for fraud or duress in such elections.

3. A right for any member or body to look at or audit any of the union books.

4. Restrictions for seizure of locals by international unions and holding them "captive"; guarantees permitting only reasonable discipline of locals and members.

5. Remedie. for capricious and fraudulent imposition of heavy penalties and prohibition against violation of the principles of due process of law generally.

In 1944, a special committee of the American Civil Liberties Union conducted an investigation into union abuses. Among other things the report of this committee said:

"If trade unions are to offset the attacks of their enemies, it becomes imperative that they should remove these abuses.

"The entire program of the enemies of labor would be weakened, and we believe defeated, if racketeering, autocratic leadership, excessive initiation fees, racial and other discriminations could be quickly eliminated."

Independently, as a result of his own experiences in the labor movement, Jacobs has come to the same conclusion. After trying, in vain, to get two previous Congresses to do something about it, Jacobs decided to run for the Eighty-first Congress himself. He ran on a platform calling for elimination of the Taft-Hartley Act and for elimination of undemocratic practices in unions. He intends to see both battles through to the finish.

Allocations Of Steel Cut

Truman asked Congress, among other things, to:

1. "Authorize priorities and allocations for key materials in short supply."

2. "Authorize an immediate study of the adequacy of production facilities for materials in critically short supply, such as steel and if found necessary, to authorize Government loans for the expansion of production facilities to relieve such shortages and furthermore to authorize the construction of such facilities directly if action by private industry fails to meet our needs."

It is historic that Congress hesitates to order restrictions in the face of voluntary lifting of those restrictions by the agency enforcing them. The Office of Price Administration and the Civilian Production Administration faced similar situations in 1946.

Since President Truman's address on January 4 there has been a vast change in the picture as applied to steel. The best thought at that time was that production of finished steel this year would amount to about 68 million tons, while demand was estimated at 75 million (70.8 million for domestic use, 4.2 million for export.)

Today the same minds estimate that production may reach 70 million tons, while demand may drop to about the same figure.

Increased steel production in Europe plus the continents continued dollar shortage has reduced the export demand—not, perhaps, the need—for steel abroad.

On the other hand favorable conditions in this country, such as almost perfect weather for steel production (an important factor), more efficient production capacity, the ready availability of scrap, and no hindrances such as gas, car or other fuel and transport shortages, have lifted prospects for production.

Also quietly, the steel industry has worked towards improving or expanding its own production facilities. One of the reasons for the recent shortages, a steel expert explained to The Washington Post, was the use of an important element of the output by the industry itself for expansion and replacement.

The changing situation in steel was summed up by one of the Nations leaders in that industry, Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel Corp., Saturday when he said in his annual report:

"The year started off with a continuing strong demand, but there is evidence that we have gone over the top.

"I believe that by next January 1 the steel industry will find itself again in what might be termed its normal condition of being overbuilt.

"In my opinion there is very little, if any, actual shortage of steel today."

Weir said there is a "definite downward tendency in business generally"—a tendency whose extent can "be greatly influenced by legislation."

Prices don't sag in the face of shortages. It is significant therefore, to compare some metals prices with a month ago. Steel scrap, for instance, was $36 a ton in Pittsburgh as the week closed, against $39 a month ago; lead, in New York, was 18 cents a pound, against 21½ a month previous; zinc was 16 cents contrasted with 17½. Copper scrap dropped a full cent in five days last week, to 16 cents a pound.

One other point in regard to steel concerns the export market. Government experts frankly state that present export controls are being operated more nowadays in the interest of our "strategic and foreign policies" than to relieve the pessure of shortages at home.

A major influence is to head off American shipments, either direct or by trans-shipment, to eastern Europe, where some day they might be used against us.

An enlightening picture of our export position was revealed in New York recently, when a Commerce Department authority, Wilson Sweeney, told the Steel Exporters Group of the Commerce and Industry Association "we have now reached the point where we should think of stimulating exports, not just controlling them.

"The Office of International Trade," he added, "has not been unaware of the rapid decline in steel shipments. We have already taken a number of steps toward relaxation of overly-rigid licensing requirements.

"We find that the drop in actual export of steel has been far more striking than the drop in quantities licensed for export, and even more impressive when compared with the export quotas established by OIT.

"The facts are that exporters are not shipping all the steel for which they hold licenses, and, in some commodities, are not submitting applications for as much steel as has been assigned for export."

When export controls were first imposed, the Department aimed at halting export of steel needed at home. As Sweeney said, "We did a pretty successful job"—a job they will now try to undo.

"Exports of steel," he said, "dropped from 6,480,000 tons in 1947 ot 4,300,000 tons in 1948—a cut of about one-third.

"Figuring in steel bars, the drop was nearly 50 per cent. Naturally we don't want to be held responsible for this entire cut. Limited dollar availability abroad and tightness of supply here at home were also major factors."

1,400,000 Aided By VA Loans In Four Years

By The Associated Press

The Veterans' Administration said yesterday its credit aid has helped more than 1,400,000 World War II veterans buy homes in four years.

During that period, the agency said, veterans have taken out GI home loans totaling eight billion dollars. The Administration has guaranteed or insured the mortgage lenders against loss for $3,827,000,000 of the amount.

During 1948 about 350,000 veterans obtained GI home loan financing. The total in 1947 was 540,000, and in 1946, 410,000.

The average cost of the home the veteran bought in 1948 was $8300, about $1000 above the 1947 average, the agency said.

During this time there have been 26 different sets of civilian commissioners. From this standpoint the overwhelming number—16—were bipartisan, one Republican and one Democrat. Three boards were all Republican, two all Democratic, three had one Democrat and one nonpartisan, one had one Republican and one nonpartisan and one had two nonpartisan members.

Affiliations Never Strong

It should be noted that political affiliations of many of the members were never very strong. Newspaper accounts frequently tell of appointment of new commissioners without referring to their politics. In most cases this was because the men had lived so long in the District where they could not vote that their political convictions appear to have atrophied.

The first president of the Board of Commissioners, Seth Ledyard Phelps, was a Navy officer who had been associated with General Grant in the West. Grant appointed him as commissioner. As far as can be determined, Phelps never expressed any political convictions.

Another commissioner, Herbert B. Crosby, won his job only after a fierce Senate fight over his confirmation. But the argument was not over his political affiliation—he said he never voted for either party and had no party conviction. He was attacked because he was a retired Army officer and his opponents claimed his appointment was a violation of the law that the two civilian commissioners be "from civil life."

The "tradition" of bipartisanship in the commissioner's offices grew largely from one long continuous period during which this was the case—from July, 1882, to January, 1910.

Taft Named Two Republicans

But since that time:

President Taft named two Republicans to one board.

President Wilson named two men with no party affiliations and two boards with one nonpartisan and one Democrat.

President Harding named one Republican and one Democrat.

President Coolidge named two boards each with two Republicans, then one bipartisan board.

President Hoover named a board of one Republican and the nonpartisan Crosby.

President Roosevelt first named two Democrats, the late Melvin C. Hazen and George E. Allen. Allen later became famous as President Truman's close personal friend. Roosevelt later named Young and Hazen, then Young and Mason, both bipartisan boards.

In some cases the shift to or from bipartisan boards was made, of course, by the naming of only one new Commissioner, the other being a hold-over appointee.

Follows Present Situation

The attitude of the two local party groups follows closely the present situation: the Republicans have called for a bipartisan group, which would mean the reappointment of Young or the appointment of another Republican. The Democrats want a straight Democratic board, meaning the appointment of Thomas P. Morgan, jr., their official candidate.

It was the Republicans who brought up the question of bipartisan "tradition" with a resolution early this month. The State Committee in and for the District told Mr. Truman the two major parties have had an understanding since 1878 that one of the civilian commissioners should represent one party, the other the other party.

"That understanding," the resolution declared, "has been almost uniformly honored by the successive Presidents of the United States."

But the local Democratic leader, National Committeeman Melvin D. Hildreth, said last night "there is no tradition to bind the President." The whole question, he added, is "what is best for our town and we think Tom Morgan is the answer."

Besides, the Democrats point out, Morgan is on record both for home rule and the President's civil rights program while Young is opposed to home rule and has remained silent on civil rights.

Hospital Internships Outnumber Candidates

New York, March 27 (AP).—Hospitals in this country have more internships to offer than there are medical school graduates to fill them, it was reported today.

The Hospital Council of Greater New York said in its bulletin there currently is a shortage of about 4000 interns.

The council said the number of internships increased 25 per cent from 1938 to 1948, but the number of medical graduates increased only about 7 per cent.

More Rebuffs by Congress Seen for Truman

which would exclude Washington.

If Senator McCarthy is successful in revising the District bill, ceilings would immediately be lifted from hotel apartments here which are living quarters for a large number of Senators and Representatives.

The President was expected to receive in the next two weeks another rebuff when he attempts for the second time to obtain Senate confirmation for his friend, Mon C. Wallgren, as chairman of the National Security Resources Board.

House sources said yesterday that Mr. Turman plans to invite Senators Tydings (D., Md.) and Magnuson (D., Wash.) to a conference to discuss the chances of reversing the action of the Senate Armed Services Committee, which voted 7-6 recently to table Wallgren's nomination.

But Administration leaders described Wallgren's case as nearly hopeless. One spokesman said even if the committee changed its mind the Administration would have trouble mustering the necessary Senate majority to confirm the nomination.

In a like manner opponents of the President's demand for outright repeal of the Taft-Hartley labor law appeared to be in a position to retain many of the law's provisions.

Representative McCormack (D., Mass.), House majority leader, said he plans to call up the repeal measure after April 4.

The Administration's bill—returning legislation virtually to the form of the Wagner Act—is expected to have its greatest trouble in the Senate, where Senator Robert Taft (R., Ohio), is preparing to sponsor numerous amendments designed to insert many of the Taft-Hartley provisions into the bill. He is expected to have the support of a coalition of Republicans and Democrats.

A similar coalition is behind the move in the Senate to block President Truman's request for an additional four billion dollars in taxes. Many of the group have announced their opposition to the Economic Cooperation Administration request for $5,580,000,000 in European aid spending during the next 15 months, but proponents of the measure now before the Senate predict its bipartisan backing will result in passage with only minor reductions.

Group to Discuss Hoover Report Tuesday

Carter Manasco, formerly chairman of the Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments and a member of the Hoover Commission, will be the principal speaker.

Babich Plans Fight In Girl's Slaying

Milwaukee, Wis., March 27 (U.P.). Attorneys for Milton Babich, 19, said today the youth will fight his case despite a confession to police that he killed Patricia Birmingham, 16, and dumped her body into the Milwaukee River.

Attorney Arthur Richter conferred with Babich at the city jail and emerged with the statement that "He will not plead guilty." He added that if the first degree murder charge is reduced, Babich "very probably will plead guilty."

Richter said Babich has not signed a 40-page transcribed statement in which police said, he admitted slaying Patricia February 10 because she refused to keep secret the pregnancy of her sister, Kathleen, 17. Babich married Kathleen last week.

quiry into "the list." Its inquiry is still in progress.

Coming on the heels of the post-election shutdown of gambling rackets these developments served to drive the five-million-dollar-a-year peddlers to cover. Police also intensified enforcement.

Play Virtually Ceases

As a result, Tampa has had four months in which the numbers racket has virtually ceased to exist. Small and occasional purchases of numbers could be made by persons known by a peddler. But the big play stopped.

The rackets thus were under curb for much of the recent winter season. They ran wide open during the same period a year ago.

Police and sheriff's dockets show that a total of 12,193 arrests were made in both enforcement agencies this past winter.

In the same period a year ago, the combined arrests total 15,358, or 3165 more than the 12,193 total of the last four months.

The winter just passed was rated one of the top tourist seasons by resort people, and the decline in arrests in Tampa cannot be attributed to less populous conditions.

Daily Poetry 20-Minute Task For Metcalfe

It takes 20 minutes to an hour to write the daily poetic feature, "Portraits," and about four hours a day to read the fan mail.

Metcalfe

That is the experience of James J. Metcalfe, whose "Portraits" appear in The Washington Post and more than a hundred other papers—including the Irish Independent in Dublin.

Metcalfe, who will autograph his new book of poems, "Garden In My Heart," from 2 to 4:30 p. m. today at S. Kann Sons department store, says that most people do not realize that his poems are written months in advance of publication.

Thus when a poem, "Kristina's Measles," appeared, he received hundreds of letters and sympathy cards from people who respond to humanness of his work. "Actually, though," he said yesterday, "Kristina had her measles months before."

Kristina, 5, is the youngest of the Metcalfes' three children. The other two are boys, Jimmie, jr., 14, and Donnie, 12.

The children are the source of much of his inspiration, he says, "and my wife is the inspiration for my love poetry—but not all of it. "Once in a while I write a sad love poem and then people think 'the Metcalfes have broken up,' and I get another flood of sympathetic mail."

Metcalfe, a former G-man, was present when Dillinger was killed in Chicago in 1934. Also a former newspaperman, he won the National Headliners Club award for distinguished journalism for his exposure of the German-American Bund in the Middle West. Metcalfe and his family now live in Dallas, Tex.

During his brief visit to Washington, he and Mrs. Metcalfe have been guests of his mother, Mrs. Berenice Metcalfe, and brother, John C. Metcalfe, of 9003 Sudbury rd., Silver Spring, and a cousin, Paul E. Johnson, an attorney with offices in the Woodward building.

Metcalfe will be heard over Bill Gold's "This is Washington" program on WTOP at 10 a. m. Tuesday.

Peale to Speak At Book Event

Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, author of "A Guide to Confident Living" and editor of "Guideposts," will be one of the four guest speakers at the spring Book and Author Luncheon sponsored by The Washington Post.

Dr. Peale

The luncheon will be held in the Presidential Room of the Hotel Statler on Wednesday, April 6, at 1 p. m., and the other speakers will be Alan Villiers, author of "The Set of the Sails;" Vera Bloom, author of "There's No Place Like Washington" and "The Entertaining Lady," and Lajos Zilahy, author of the best-seller novel, "The Dukays."

Dr. Peale has been pastor of New York's Marble Collegiate Church since 1932.

In "A Guide to Confident Living," which has been a best-seller for the past year, Dr. Peale has compiled those techniques and principles he employs in trying to solve the personal problems of the thousands who consult him each year.

"Used to be just like that..."

"Lived next door for seven years. Kids went to the same Sunday schools, and we shared a cottage at the Lake two-three summers. Worked together on Community Chest drives... Why it was Jim who put me up for the lunch club!

"I thought he'd grab our proposition. But offering to introduce us to the purchasing agent was practically the brush! Jim used to be a fellow who'd go to bat for a friend!

"I don't know... maybe being a Big Shot really does something to a man..."

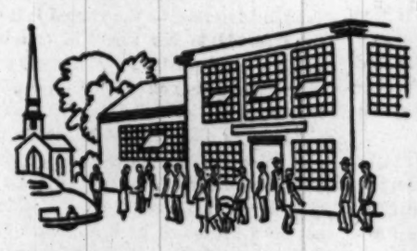
BEING a Big Shot—a really big Big Shot, that is—in a big company, does a lot to a man.

He lives in a goldfish bowl, watched for habits, weaknesses, blind spots. His subordinates have specialized experience exceeding his own, may not be ignored or easily overruled. He suggests and requests, but rarely orders. He initiates, does not implement... the bond issue, and building—but the funds will be spent, construction carried out, by other people. He delegates as much as possible, shies off details. And he favors nobody at the expense of his position, associates, stockholders.

So the time-honored recipe of the go-getter salesman—"Sell the man at the top"... is as impracticable as sled dogs on the desert. Once it worked, in the one-man, one-mind company—and never as well as its advocates claimed. Today, the man at the top of the big company is past being a prospect, figuratively and factually not at home to salesmen... The time to sell the man at the top was before he got there, when he could be reached and reasoned with, put up a fight for a better buy or a good friend!

NATION'S BUSINESS has more "big shots" of business among its subscribers than any other business publication... goes as far toward selling them as any influence can, farther than salesmen.

But the really big job Nation's Business does for any company selling to business... is with the hundreds of thousands of men on the way up—executives in the smaller companies which in the aggregate are still the major business market... men in the smaller jobs who still make the decisions on heating plants, intercom systems, delivery trucks, office appliances, freight routes, group policies, paper towels... men in the smaller cities which are still the headquarters of the majority of American industry.



Nation's Business is no office guide, shop manual, home study course... not the book for closing prices, bid and asked, who changed jobs, plugs and publicity releases... not a news vehicle. There is no lack of business news these days—but a devastating dearth of understanding of the real conditions that cause news.

Nation's Business takes the long view, looks ahead, reviews carefully and comprehensively the trends, forces, movements that make spot news tomorrow... points out the probable and possible, marks the open roads and stop signs. And when important news breaks, the Nation's Business reader is spared the high blood pressure and the baffled mentality that makes snap judgments and business men old before their time.

AND FOR WHAT Nation's Business has to give... more business men pay more money than for any other business publication... and incidentally make Nation's Business more of a business market! ...With 650,000 circulation, Nation's Business has more circulation than any other business magazine—more coverage for advertisers in every business classification, every locality, and every rating. And naturally the largest package of business prospects comes at the lowest cost.

Maybe you ought to know more about Nation's Business? Call any office...

Welfare Report

Two of the persistent troubles of the Hoover Commission stand out glaringly in its two-decker report on Social Security and Education and on Indian Affairs.

The first is the increasing difficulty the commission is having in fitting the various activities of the executive branch into neatly arranged functional charts with all the lines of authority and coordination properly drawn. The second is that where the commission steps over the line of administrative reorganization into policy, it gets quickly beyond its jurisdiction.

In the first section on social security and educational functions of the Federal Government, the commission explicitly says it is not concerned with policy issues. But the second half on Indian affairs jumps over the fence with unsuspected agility. Six of its nine recommendations on "the Indian problem" are matters of policy. The dissents of Messrs. Acheson, Rowe and Forrestal are, we think, well taken—not only on grounds that the commission overstepped its jurisdiction, but that its policy recommendations show little grasp of the underlying issues.

The other difficulty—of seeking a neat pattern of organization—is illustrated in the recommendation that the Bureau of Indian Affairs be transferred from Interior to the proposed new Department of Social Security and Education. The Indian Bureau does not, the commission concedes, fit clearly in either place, though admittedly it is primarily a welfare agency. But the proposed shift would probably create as many new administrative problems as it eliminated and seems, therefore, like a change made simply for the sake of change. Another example indicates that the commission became groggy with chart-making toward the end of its labors. It would split the Food and Drug Administration between Agriculture and a proposed new "United Medical Administration." By the rule apparently applied here Food and Drug's supervision over cosmetics—which the commission seems to have overlooked—should go to the Women's Bureau in the Labor Department.

Sales Tax Again

The battle over the proposed District sales tax will be renewed today in the House when a revised version of the measure rejected two weeks ago will be offered for consideration. Since the new measure is not very different from the rejected one, the chief hope for a reversal of the vote against sales taxation lies in the fact that additional revenues have to be found. The only alternative to an increase in taxes would be a drastic cut in District expenditures that would cause great hardship. For that matter, even the limited reductions in projected budgetary outlays recently voted by the House would, if permitted to stand, gravely cripple the local government. Moreover, at least 10 million dollars of additional revenue is needed to finance increases in the pay of District employes—a moral obligation that it would be shameful for Congress to evade.

By a combination of higher property and income taxes, larger Federal contributions, additions to excise taxes and borrowing, the District budget could be balanced with comparative ease without resort to a sales tax. While Congress might as a last resort be willing to authorize borrowing on a limited scale to finance capital improvements, it is extremely unlikely that it would permit the District to borrow to meet a deficit in the general fund. Possibly, it might also agree, under pressure, to an increase of several millions in the size of the Federal contribution to compensate more fully for revenue lost through tax-exemption of Federal property which comprises nearly half the total District area. But, since everyone of these proposals would meet with strong opposition from some members of Congress, the chance of obtaining the revenue the District needs without the sales tax is very slim.

If increases in property taxes were relied on exclusively to cover an 18-million-dollar deficit, the resultant heavy additions to tax bills would be followed by a rise in rentals that would hit low-income families as well as upper-income tenants and work hardship on many home owners. Similarly, an increase in rates under the present equitable income taxes sufficient to produce enough revenue to balance the District budget would impose additional burdens on lower-income groups, in many cases more onerous than sales taxes.

The latest revenue bill includes a provision for an increase of 15 cents in the present property tax rate; it also raises income tax exemptions to the $4000 level, as well as increasing liquor licenses by 50 per cent. These provisions may propitiate some sales tax opponents who object to the regressive nature of the levy, since lower-income families would escape payment of income taxes as an offset to payment of sales taxes, while some of the increased tax burden would be borne by property owners. We hope the House will rise to this bait and vote for the sales tax. For in our opinion it is the most feasible method of solving the local fiscal problem. The tax reaches everyone; it is too small to work hardship, and yet it is large enough to insure a steady and an abundant flow of much needed revenue.

Home-Rule Bill

The central provisions of Senator Kefauver's bill to give the District of Columbia home rule are almost certain to receive warm approval at the hearings today. It follows the main outlines of other measures that have won widespread community support. Policy-making powers would be centered in an elected council of nine members and the administrative function would be lodged in a city manager. Residents who have lived here a year or more would be allowed to vote in the municipal elections, even though they might retain the right to vote in national elections in the State of their domicile. Reorganization would be effected by bringing the existing scattered agencies into 12 functional departments. All these principles have been much debated and seem to us to have won general community acceptance.

Attention may well be centered, therefore, upon those few provisions of the bill that seem to detract from its commendable purpose of giving the Nation's Capital control over its local affairs. One section holds out to the proposed District Council sweeping home-rule powers comparable to those granted to such territories as Alaska and Hawaii. But another provision would whittle down this power to a point where the council might readily be hamstrung. Each legislative proposal passed by the council could be vetoed by either house of Congress within a 60-day period or by the President in a 10-day period. In the act itself Congress would express its will of leaving the Capital's municipal affairs to a local council, but it would then permit one house acting alone to defeat that will. This seems to us to involve twisted constitutional reasoning as well as unwise policy.

This defect would be less serious if the bill itself contained a broad grant of power over municipal affairs that would not be subjected to single-house veto. To be sure, the bill would give the council power to enact its own budget. That is an item of great importance. But in the ordinance-making sphere, the council would simply inherit the powers and functions of the present Board of Commissioners and the Zoning Commission. These powers are much narrower than the powers customarily exercised by a city council, to say nothing of the legislative powers which elsewhere in our democratic country are exercised by State or territorial legislatures. A charter resting on such a narrow base certainly should allow for gradual expansion of home-rule powers with the consent of Congress. But, as the bill now stands, a determined minority in the House could probably prevent such orderly development.

We do not think the bill is to be criticized for dropping the idea of a District delegate, which would create the problem of two separate electorates in the District. Nor is it to be condemned for failing to include a provision for automatic adjustment of the Federal payment to the District from year to year. Of course, such a provision would be highly desirable. But it would also be a target against which the foes of home rule would aim with probably devastating effect. As the bill now stands, it would leave the present law authorizing a 12-million-dollar annual payment on the books. To use this lack of progress in wiping out an economic inequity as an argument against correcting the far more flagrant political inequities of the present situation would be too fallacious for serious consideration.

It is to be hoped, however, that Senator Kefauver will amend Title IV in conformity with the general practice in delegating congressional powers. That sound practice is for Congress to lay down the general principles and allow those principles to be applied until the whole Congress acts to the contrary. A District council would be just as competent to exercise full-fledged home-rule powers as is a territorial legislature. If Congress should insist upon an extraordinary check upon the local council, however, it certainly should not leave that responsibility upon either house acting alone.

Mme. Ambassador

Mrs. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, whose appointment as Indian Ambassador to Washington has just been confirmed in New Delhi, will be the first woman Ambassador ever accredited to the United States Government. If this is something new for us, it is not for her. The younger sister of Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru has quite a list of "firsts" already to her credit. She was India's first woman Provincial Minister, her country's first woman Ambassador and first Ambassador to Moscow, and the first and so far the only woman to head a national delegation to the United Nations General Assembly.

Mrs. Pandit's remarkable record does not stem solely from her family connection. She is a person of great charm and unusual ability. Needless to say, she has gathered a wealth of experience in international dealings, not all of it happy. She went to Moscow not unfavorably disposed toward the Soviet government. But the treatment she received at the hands of the Kremlin is said to have disillusioned her. Her brother, to be sure, has gone through a similar education in Russiam aims and technique. We trust she will find a warmer and more meaningful welcome in Washington.

Waldorf Salad

No one can say that the Cultural and Scientific Congress for World Peace at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York is being slighted by the press. Yesterday, for example, one New York newspaper devoted approximately 13 columns of its space to the doings of the congress and to the rival carnival of cerebration sponsored by the hastily organized Americans for Intellectual Freedom. Newspapers outside New York have naturally been a little less generous of attention, but most of them have published the press association dispatches from the congress on their front pages.

The highbrows participating in these performances have not made the most of the opportunity thus afforded them. Up to now the mountains built by publicity have given birth to mice of moderate size. The delegates at the Waldorf have said just about what might have been expected of them; the general refrain of the Americans has been that unless the United States and Russia come to some agreement there is likely to be war, a view which, though plausible enough in itself, scarcely represents any solution of present difficulties. Although, as was anticipated, the Communists are in control of the congress, by no means all those attending it are Communists or even undeviating fellow travelers. The difference between the non-Communists at the Waldorf-Astoria and the anti-Communists holding forth at Freedom House is measurable by their respective degrees of disillusion. That is to say the one group is still persuaded that a unity of mind between Americans and Russians on some matters, including science and culture, is possible; the other group is convinced that it is not.

It must have been a little discouraging to the optimists to read, before the congress had barely got under way, the dispatch from Moscow about the new Soviet encyclopedia which is to set forth the Marxist position on all matters of culture and science. What this means, of course, is that the conclusions of Marxist science have been determined in advance of investigation, in which case science itself seems somewhat superfluous. This is a very different view of science from the one held at Freedom House. There, Prof. Sidney Hook told an approving audience that the Soviet science is actually a denial of the possibility or importance of objective truth, thereby permitting one kind of science within the Soviet Union and another outside it. This, observed Professor Hook, is of a piece with Hitler's distinction between Nordic science and Jewish science.

To uncultivated and unscientific minds the principal interest appears to be in the mass picketing and other demonstrations outside the congress, which, though orderly until now, have doubtless provided a considerable headache for the police. There is perhaps a poetic justice in the fact that the American Communists, who put so much time and zeal into the development of these devices, now find them turned against themselves. Still, the practice is no less dangerous for that reason; and we wonder if the picketing is really helping the cause of those who have organized it. It will hardly persuade any of the American comrades of his error, and it has probably discouraged any Russian delegate who might have been tempted to follow the examples of former Comrade Kravchenko and Mme. Kasenkina.

Drinking On Trains

The mother of George L. Ashton, one of the bandits who ran amuck, shooting, slugging and robbing passengers on a Baltimore & Ohio express train recently, has sued the road for damages, on the ground that drinks were served to her son, still "an infant" in the eyes of the law, when he was already intoxicated and in an "insouciant condition." Possibly the laws of West Virginia were violated, as the complaint alleges. It is also quite possible that Ashton and his companion would not have staged their spectacular and foolhardy holdup if they had not been befuddled by drink. But even if it can be proved that the crime was not premeditated, the attempt to hold the railroad responsible for the youthful bandit's acts will not impress anyone who has looked at his record, which includes auto thefts and a series of armed robberies that finally landed him in the Ohio Reformatory.

WATERSPELL

I stood alone upon a darkening shore,
And heard the singing waters go and come,
And murmured for the songs that came no more
Because the voices of the world were dumb.

And then into the shadows tremblingly
Your name fell faltering from these wayward lips,
And lingered in the wind above the sea,
And filled the sails of all the wandering ships.

And suddenly the surging air around,
The ocean's depth, the glimmering heaves' height,
Were one forever with the thunderous sound
Of all earth's voices crying in the night.

Inherent Power

A United Press item in your issue of March 21, states, in connection with the injunctive provision of the Taft-Hartley Law: "Mr. Truman has argued that injunctions are not necessary; that he already has sufficient 'inherent' power to prevent such walkouts if deemed necessary."

President Truman's contention seems to be of long standing and he appears to have strong support in his argument. Mr. John Kirby, jr., in his valedictory as president of the National Association of Manufacturers, delivered in Detroit, May 20, 1913, states among other attitudes toward labor legislation: "We have opposed and shall continue to oppose the enactment by Congress and State Legislatures of several species of particularly pernicious legislation which we believe to be fundamentally wrong, intrinsically unwise and dangerous to our entire system of government.

"It is needless for me to state that the legislation we have so constantly fought relates to the insistent and subtle attempt by the American Federation of Labor to strip our courts of equity of certain vested and inherent powers in the matter of the issuance of injunctions in labor disputes.

"We do not oppose remedial legislation with reference to procedure affecting equity practice. We accept the new series of rules promulgated by the United States Supreme Court, declaratory of the procedure incident to the issuance of injunctions in labor disputes. What we precisely oppose, however, relates to a deeper and more sinister attempt to strip from the inherent power of the courts of equity the right of issuance of injunctions where such disputes have arisen."

Postal Rates

Asking Congress for one postal rate increase after another, Postmaster General Donaldson seems determined to put his department on a self-paying basis. On the surface this would seem to be a desire entirely praiseworthy. Yet when we stop to think that the Postoffice Department is not a mere business, the facts assume a different look.

We do not expect the Departments of Labor, the Interior and Defense to pay for themselves. We do not demand it of any governmental agency that gives public service.

Neither should we insist that the Postoffice Department shall, like a good private business, operate "in the black." Any deficit in Mr. Donaldson's department should be crossed off as a contribution to the welfare of the people, a legitimate public expenditure.

Greatest of all is the service which the Postoffice gives all the people in spreading the means of enlightenment, indispensable in a republic. Newspapers, magazines, books are delivered by mail. The proposed unreasonable increase in postal rates is a threat against public enlightenment, since many libraries and schools, as well as individual readers and students, have limited budgets.

Bishops' Relief Fund

Throughout the Nation the Bishops' Fund for the Victims of War is making an appeal for five million dollars in order to continue its work of aiding those abroad through its two agencies, the Bishops' Emergency Relief Committee and War Relief Services of the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

The distribution of food, clothing and medical supplies directly to the neediest, the maintenance of hundreds of orphanges, hospitals, day nurseries, summer camps, homes for the aged and schools, depend on the charity of Americans for their continuance.

Thus far the Bishops' Fund agencies in serving victims of war regardless of religion, color, or race, in 62 countries have supplied more than 274,147,000 pounds of relief materials valued at over $131,610,000 to war sufferers since August, 1942.

Not only will relief continue to be given to war sufferers but thousands of the homeless refugees will be helped to find homes of their own in South America, New Zealand, Canada, Australia, as well as the United States. Thousands of war victims have been helped, but they and thousands more need still more aid. If one would like to take part in furthering the aid program, his contribution will be welcomed at any Catholic Church.

Horse Laugh

Far into the night I had been reading the Congressional Record. Becoming weary of the drone of the river of words I fell asleep and dreamed.

I dreamed I was listening over my multiple-way radio hookup on the Timbuktu-Borneo-Jungleo circuit. I heard much goofooing, hoohooing and glug-a-glug-glugging. I couldn't understand much that was said but did catch the words Washington, Senate, American freedom and —filibuster.

That gave me an idea so I plugged in the Washington circuit. I heard a monotonous voice droning steadily on, interrupted now and then by a twangy voice asking "leading" questions — meaning that the questioneer agreed with the questionee.

I knew right away that democracy was in action, the action being to inundate, against its will, with a polyglotic river of words, the face of the whole land.

I could see that the objective was not to get something done but to prevent things being done. It was action to prevent action. It was obstruction.

Then I switched back to the Borneo circuit — and joined in the horse-laughing at—the jackass braying.

For A World Food Board

I read with great interest President Truman's inaugural address, especially the part which says the U. S. A. must embark on a bold new program for the improvement of undeveloped areas.

In my opinion this is the way to stop the march of communism. The world today needs a spiritual ideal which will fire the imagination of the masses. The ideal, however, must be one which is economically sound.

Today the United States, compared with the rest of the world, is enormously wealthy and powerful. It can lead the world to the new age of plenty which science has made possible, and so remove the misery and disease to which the President refers as affecting the majority of mankind. It can take the lead in creating new wealth all over the world to raise the standard of living of the people and at the same time offer something which the U.S.S.R. cannot offer, the political independence of the people.

Roosevelt's four freedoms, which caused such a great wave of hope for the future in this country and indeed in all countries, are the ideal we need. It is up to the United States to say whether these are to be put into practice. Such might be the destiny of your great Nation.

When I was Director General of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization I put forward proposals for a world food board in which, through the FAO, the Economic Council of U. N., the World Bank and any other international organizations concerned, the nations would have cooperated in the application of modern science to double the world's food supply in 25 years.

The announcement to the world that the nations led by the United States were embarking of a global plan to eliminate hunger and malnutrition would have raised the enthusiasm of the people of China, Latin-America and Greece where the real revolt is against hunger and poverty.

At Copenhagen when the proposals were submitted to governments at the conference, the first to address the conference on the proposals was the leader of the United States delegation. When he declared in a short, blunt speech that the Government of the United States approved of the proposals and was prepared to cooperate, there was the greatest scene I have ever experienced.

I am sorry to say that the Government of the United Kingdom did not show the same vision and that when the commission appointed by the conference to work out the proposals in greater detail met, the United States had changed its mind and all we were able to set up was a world food council. That, however, in itself is a great achievement. Fifty-nine nations meeting to consider the world food position and making recommendations as to what governments should do is something new in the history of the world and I was delighted when I learned that your President was going to attend the conference in person.

My opinion is that as food is fundamental to health and happiness and to an expanding world economy, which is essential to preventing another slump, cooperation through a world food plan can be the beginning of the new age of peace and plenty and is the only alternative to war.

The people of the world today no longer believe in fine phrases. What they want is an assurance that something is going to be done and the first thing needed in view of the rapidly growing world population and soil erosion is a world food plan to enable the earth to produce the abundance that modern science can call forth.

I have often wondered whether the United States might not again renew its offer to cooperate in a definite concrete plan as set out in the proposals for a world food board. The offer would, I know, be hailed with great enthusiasm by, I should think, every country in the world with the possible exception of the USSR and the United Kingdom, but whichever country did not agree to cooperate would be put on the spot.

For example, if the USSR refused then it could be brought to the bar of public opinion as the nation which, while proclaiming great ideals of communism, was not prepared to cooperate with other nations in providing food, clothing, housing and a rise in the standard of living for the poverty-stricken mass of the world.

Matter of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

The General's Shadow

THE PRESIDENT'S military aide, Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, has been customarily regarded as one of the comic characters of the Washington scene. His private talent for Elks' bar jokes is only equaled by his propensity for public gaffes. He does not wear the solemn mask of statesmanship. Seemingly he is just one of the boys, one of the President's oldest friends, one of the all too human details in the grand panorama of the Government.

It is time to realize, however, that there is more to Vaughan than meets the eye. He has always been a sort of crumb in the bed of the President's more serious advisers, ever since Truman succeeded to his office. Robert E. Hannegan, architect of Truman's fortunes, made the first of a long series of unsuccessful attempts to persuade the President to get rid of Vaughan, back in the days when he was Postmaster General and chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

But the election last November 2 altered the position of this friend of the President's by altering the President himself. Hannegan's distaste for the general was based on the political inconvenience of such episodes as Vaughan's remarkable summary of the Potsdam Conference, for the benefit of a church group in Virginia. He was then regarded as a nuisance. He must now be considered an important influence, for the President has gained enough self-confidence from his victory to listen to the man he likes so much on a greatly extended range of subjects.

IN POLITICS, unfortunately, many of the most important facts are not tangible, and cannot be any more exactly pinned down than a change in the atmosphere. The rise of Harry Vaughan belongs to this category of development. It is to be observed in rather casual signs.

The control of patronage that would normally be exercised by Senator J. Howard McGrath, as current National Committee chairman, has lately begun to be limited, for example. Vaughan is not only interested himself in special situations, such as Louis Johnson's appointment as Secretary of Defense, or, on a lower level, the Wisconsin judgeship that is now vacant. There are also indications that he is beginning to range over the whole field, and to gather into his hands more and more of the crucial job-dispensing function.

Normally, this sort of change in the relative positions of the men around the President would be interesting only from the standpoint of the personalities involved. But in this instance, the rise of Harry Vaughan dramatizes a much larger and more significant phenomenon. It does not matter which individual advises the President of the United States. But it does matter a great deal what kind of individuals are depended upon by the President. And in the present case, the breed is changing.

There has always been a curious division at the White House, between the cronies and the men who can best be lumped together as the professionals. The professionals have included a remarkably motley assortment, ranging from expert politicians like Hannegan and McGrath to great administrators and trained officials like Robert A. Lovett and James V. Forrestal. Very broadly and roughly speaking, the President's habit in his first Administration was to live with the cronies, but to let the professionals help him when really important issues were to be decided.

IN LINE WITH this pattern, in his first Administration he left the professionals in almost undisputed control of foreign and defense policy. And in defiance of the cronies, he took from the professionals the repeated advice to go left in domestic policy, which won him the election. The lineup was loose—for instance, Forrestal frequently sided with the cronies on domestic questions. Nonetheless, the cronies in those days seldom prevailed except on minor matters.

A rather different situation is now arising. One by one, the professionals are departing from the scene. Simultaneously, the President's isolation in the White House is increasing, so that he is even ceasing to consult very often with such old and loyal friends as Vice President Alben Barkley.

The group that is really close to him is becoming more and more restricted to his personal inner circle, of Vaughan, Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder, Dr. John Steelman and the rest. And this is extremely significant, because these men are both politically conservative and strongly tend toward the new form of isolationism that dismisses warnings about the world situation as "crisis-mongering." What has happened is still only a change of atmosphere. But it begins to look like the sort of change of atmosphere that can kill crops.

A Communication

Alternative Revenue Plan For Washington

By Six Members of the House of Representatives

YOUR editorials, "Pauperized Washington" of March 16, and "A Ward of Congress" of March 19, charged that the members of the House of Representatives who voted down the sales tax " showed not the slightest regard for the real financial problems (of the District)" and that their action was "irresponsible."

Editorials like these serve only to confuse issues. We should like to take this opportunity to present a revenue program which will demonstrate that the situation is not as desperate as your newspaper would have the public believe. This program would yield more revenue than the sales tax measure recently rejected by the House. It is also superior to the sales tax because it is more equitable, easier to administer and will provide the basis for expanding revenues in the future to provide necessary services for District residents.

The program consists of the following: a broadened personal income tax which will tax all persons who reside in the District; a somewhat higher property tax; a larger Federal payment; and authorization to finance long-term improvements by borrowing.

The income tax and property tax features of this program are included in six identical bills which we introduced in the House last Tuesday. The increased Federal contribution and the repeal of the law of 1878 prohibiting the District from borrowing, will be included in other legislation.

THE DISTRICT of Columbia already has the elements of a good personal income tax. This produces a small amount of revenue at the present time because employes of the Federal Government domiciled elsewhere are specifically exempt. If this exemption for Federal workers were eliminated, the personal income tax would immediately yield at least an additional five million dollars a year.

Opponents of a broader income tax have argued that it would result in double taxation, since some residents of the District pay tax to their home States. This double taxation charge is simply not true. Existing law already provides a credit for residents of the District who pay tax to other States for the full amount of such taxes paid.

Without further amendment, the law would provide the same credit to persons who would be subject to tax under the broadened income tax proposed here. Double taxation would, therefore, be impossible.

As a matter of fact, the credit for taxes paid to other States will not greatly reduce the yield of the tax for the following reasons: First, most District residents, who are subject to income tax in their home States do not pay that tax because enforcement by State authorities is difficult and expensive.

Second, a few States do not tax domiciliaries if they do not reside there—for example, California and Idaho. New York exempts them providing they do not spent more than 30 days a year in the State. Third, 17 States do not levy a personal income tax and two States, New Hampshire and Tennessee, tax only income from intangibles. In total, double taxation of salaries earned by Federal Government employes is not possible in at least 22 States, even without the credit in the District law.

THE ESTIMATED five-million-dollar yield which would be obtained from the broadened income tax does not exhaust its revenue potentialities. Revenue can be increased by raising the rates and increasing progression. For example, the income tax provisions of the bill introduced last Tuesday would raise an additional ten million dollars, or a total of 15 million dollars more than the revenue from present law, when the five million dollars produced by broadening the base is included.

In the immediate situation, it would be unnecessary to increase rates to higher levels than those provided under the new bill. It is well to note, however, that the rates in this bill are by no means excessive in comparison with rates in other States. Thus, the income tax could be made to produce even higher revenues without unduly burdening District residents.

Increased revenue requirements can, therefore, be met by way of the income tax even if this bill were adopted. Clearly, it is prudent and sound policy to anticipate the need for further revenue and there is no more equitable way to provide for such expansion than by the income tax.

Proponents of the sales tax will argue that Congress has voted down a comprehensive income tax in the past and will also point out that the Klein bill was defeated by the present House during the sales tax debate. The performance of past Congresses is, however, no indication of how the new Congress will act, nor can the vote on the Klein bill be taken as conclusive.

The vote on the Klein bill was less than half the total vote on the sales tax. A number of influential members of the House have stated publicly that they support a sales tax only as a last resort. If they were to vote for the newly introduced bill, their vote added to the vote polled against the sales tax would be sufficient to pass that bill by a substantial margin.

THE PROPERTY tax in the District of Columbia may be low by comparison with other large cities in the country. There is no easy method to make such a comparison since the valuations in the various cities differ substantially. Even if it is granted that the District property tax is relatively low, this is by no means a justification for increasing it substantially.

Basically, the property tax is subject to the same criticism as the sales tax: it tends to be more burdensome on low-income families than on those in the higher income levels. Moreover, under rent control, a large increase in the property tax rate is likely to be fully shifted to renters, many of whom are already hard-pressed by high prices for the necessities of life.

In view of these considerations, the property tax rate might be increased, but in the interest of equity, by no more than 25 cents per $100 assessed valuation. This would mean a 12.5 per cent increase, or about four million dollars.

THE FEDERAL contribution to the District of Columbia has varied considerably since it was formally adopted. The first formula, adopted by Congress in 1878, provided a contribution of 50 per cent of total District expenditures. This formula remained unchanged, until 1921, when Congress reduced the Federal contribution to 40 per cent of District appropriations. However, the 40-60 formula was superseded by lump-sum contributions beginning in 1925.

Lump-sum contributions have varied as follows since the fiscal year 1925:

Fiscal Years
1925-30	$9,000,000
1931-33	9,500,000
1933	7,775,000
1934-36	6,790,000
1937-39	8,000,000
1940-46	6,000,000
1947	8,000,000
1948-49	*12,000,000

*Includes $1,000,000 contribution to the water fund.

During the period 1925-30, expenditures from the general fund varied between thirty million and forty million, and the nine million contribution of the Federal Government in these years varied between 21 and 32 per cent of general fund expenditures. The general fund has reached almost ninety million in the current fiscal year and the Federal contribution to the general fund of eleven million is only slightly more than 12 per cent.

There seems to be no question that a significant proportion of the increase in expenses is due to the increased cost of services to the Federal Government. Such costs have increased both because the Federal Government has enlarged its property holdings and also because the costs of running local government, like all costs, have been increased by the war and the postwar rise in prices. Clearly, it would be unfair to expect District residents to pay for higher costs of services rendered to the Federal Government.

Whether or not a formula is reintroduced or the lump-sum contribution is continued, it is obvious that the present twelve million contribution is wholly inadequate. A minimum increase of five million in the permanent contribution is essential.

THE DISTRICT government must finance all long-term improvements and construction projects out of current revenues. Elsewhere in the country, such improvements are almost always financed out of borrowed funds. Private business also finances long-term construction either by issuing bonds or by borrowing from banks or insurance companies. This practice is so widespread because it is a sound and business-like approach.

Necessary improvements and construction projects in the District have been delayed by the wartime and postwar shortages. The need for many improvements is urgent and cannot be put off longer without seriously undermining the education, hospital, public welfare and other programs. It would be impossible to provide even for minimum needs out of current revenue. The District is one of the wealthiest communities in the country, and its credit rating would be excellent. It is, therefore, both essential and safe to permit the District of Columbia to borrow funds for construction of long-term improvements.

In summary, the revenues which might be obtained from the sources enumerated above are:

Personal income tax	$15,000,000
Property tax	4,000,000
Subtotal from District sources	$19,000,000
Federal contribution	5,000,000
Total from all sources	$24,000,000

The financial situation in the District is by no means desperate, with revenue possibilities of these magnitudes available to be tapped. The program outlined above is a moderate and equitable one and, as already noted, will provide substantially more revenue than the sales tax. Its adoption would enable the District to proceed with plans for improvement in current services to District residents. If, in addition, it is allowed to borrow funds for construction purposes, the District will have the elements of a sound fiscal structure which can well serve as a model to other communities, as it should.

European Food Crop Outlook Not So Good

Pessimistic news about prospects for European food crops for this year was released by the Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations of the Agriculture Department last night.

At the same time OFAR reported "significant increases in hog numbers on all continents." Hog numbers went up to 261 million head last year—15 million above the year before, with the largest increases in Europe and the Soviet Union.

However, world hog population is still about 29 million head, or more than 10 per cent, below prewar levels. Numbers in Europe are about 75 per cent of prewar, while Russia has only about half as many as in the period 1936-40.

"Indications are that the official goals set for bread grains, particularly wheat, will not be fully met in many European countries," OFAR reported.

"Also, while it is still too early to predict prospective yields, the growing season to mid-March has not been such as to promise an outturn up to last year's very good yields in most European areas."

OFAR added that the acreage of winter wheat will be less than a year ago in Portugal and southeastern Europe. The reasons given are: (1) unfavorable weather during the fall seeding period; (2) better financial returns from other crops, and (3) changeover from grain to livestock raising.

Countries in which a drop in wheat acreage is reported include the United Kingdom, Ireland, Portugal, Sweden, Yugoslavia and Greece. Tentative reports also include Bulgaria and Romania. Increases are reported for the Low Countries, Denmark, Poland and Hungry. Acreage in Italy and France is expected to be about the same as in 1948.

"Acreage planted to winter wheat and rye in the Soviet Union in the fall of 1948 is reported to have increased by about seven million acres, or 8 per cent compared with 1947," the report added.

additional resources as fast as possible."

Aside from oil, the Interior Department annual report called attention to rapid depletion of mineral resources and recounted what had been done to develop new areas of supply. These resources, Krug reported, especially lead, zinc, and iron, are fast being used up, with consumer demand increasing.

During the year covered by the report, he said, the department's Bureau of Mines had added to known reserves of minerals, developed improved methods for use of low-grade ores, and started investigations to determine practical methods for recovering taconite. This low-grade iron ore is extremely hard and is difficult to recover economically.

Krug warned that development of atomic or solar energy to provide motive power cannot be depended upon in the forseeable future.

Oil for Only Two Generations

His gravest concern, however, was for the Nation's petroleum supply under increasingly heavy use. Domestic oil reserves, he said, are estimated at 21 billion barrels and unproven reserves may be four times as great. But he cautioned:

"Even if this were true, we have only about two generations of domestic crude oil supply left. It is time for us to move with the greatest possible speed to develop alternate supplies.

"It may take us fully 10 years to develop them sufficiently to keep our automobiles, airplanes and trains moving in a future continuing emergency, not to mention keeping many factories running. . . .

"The only safe course is to begin at once the building of a synthetic fuel industry."

Within the next 20 years, Krug said, at least 40 million new kilowatts of hydroelectric power should be developed, with the Federal Government building plants to produce at least 30 million of the total. He urged again development of the St. Lawrence seaway and power project.

Touching upon other phases of his department's responsibilities, Krug warned of a future shortage of paper pulp, but said Alaska offers relief for the newsprint industry.

He said Hawaii needs much development, not only of facilities for its growing tourist trade, but for conservation of grazing lands, rehabilitation of hardwood timber and more profitable exploitation of its tuna fisheries.

HERE'S TO THE Ladies!

The women of America are directly or indirectly responsible for the spending—or saving—of more than 70% of our $224,500,000,000 national income. That's a mighty heavy responsibility and we take off our hats to the sound way most women handle their affairs. But here at the Union Trust we don't let it go at that. We try to provide the type of friendly assistance the ladies appreciate in their banking transactions.

About 50 per cent of our depositors are women. They find our offices in the heart of the shopping district most convenient. They like to meet their friends—or rest a moment or two—in the comfortable lounge at the center of our 15th and H Streets customers' lobby.

More important, our women depositors like the higher interest rate (1½% on sums up to $2500—1% over this amount) on savings at the Union Trust Company. They are pleased, too, with our checking account plans designed to suit most needs and pocketbooks.

AS A SPECIAL SERVICE to the women of Washington, we are offering, free of charge, a helpful booklet—"WOMEN—AND THEIR MONEY"—published by the Public Affairs Committee, Inc. of New York. This booklet answers many business questions of vital interest to women, questions on investments in bonds, stocks and other securities, whether to rent or buy a home, how to provide for special needs, where to turn for financial advice, and many more. To get your FREE COPY of "WOMEN—AND THEIR MONEY" just ask at either of our offices—or write to Department B, Union Trust Company, 15th and H Streets, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Proposed Increase in Prince Georges County Tax Rate Can Be Cut in Half, Wilkinson Says

The head of Prince Georges County's legislative delegation still thinks the county will have to raise its tax rate—but only by half as much as he predicted a week ago.

Because of a new proposal for increased State aid to schools, the rate may be boosted by as little as 16 cents, Delegate Perry O. Wilkinson said yesterday. In his earlier forecast, Wilkinson anticipated a boost of about 32 cents would be needed to meet expanded school needs.

The revised figure is subject to legislative approval this week of Governor Lane's proposal to distribute $20,000,000 in matching funds to Maryland counties for school construction.

Under the proposal, which provides that the counties put up their matching funds on a 3-to-1 ratio, Prince Georges would receive a grant of $1,642,800 for school buildings. Wilkinson, who is chairman of the county's legislative delegation, said the county would have to boost its tax rate to raise funds required to match the State grant, and for other expenditures already outlined in a long-range building program.

Wilkinson said the legislative delegation would meet in Annapolis some time this week to "work out a formula" for a new tax rate.

The existing tax rate, which was left intact last year despite earlier predictions that an increase was inevitable, is $1.97 on each $100 assessed valuation.

Hudson, Haefner Tame Tigers, 3 to 2

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

ORLANDO, FLA., MARCH 27.—When General Manager Billy Evans of the Detroit Tigers was slashing player salaries last winter he squinted hard at the $22,000 wage of Outfielder Dick Wakefield and started to grab for the cleaver.

POVICH

Wakefield was overpaid; that was certain. He was a lethargic outfielder and in three years he hadn't hit above 286. Besides that, he was eccentric and wasn't figuring very heavily in the Tigers' outfield plans for 1949. Evans was just about to carve a huge hunk off Wakefield's pay, when Red Rolfe stayed his hand.

Rolfe, the new manager of the Tigers, recognized what everybody else did—that Wakefield could be a tremendous ballplayer, if he took the game seriously. He suspicioned like many others that the kid was utterly spoiled by the big $52,000 bonus they had paid him to sign in 1941. He needed some sense knocked into his head, and to be prodded off his fattening seat.

So Rolfe asked Evans to give him a year with Wakefield. He didn't want to work with him against the depressive effects of a salary cut, and would Evans hold off for a year. So Evans wrote Wakefield down for the same salary.

IN THE DETROIT camp at Lakeland, Wakefield has been a sort of reclamation project for Rolfe, who remembered when the fellow hit .355 and took the Tigers from seventh place almost to the pennant. He turned Wakefield over to Dick Bartell, his coach, with instruction to get some of the lead out of the fellow's anatomy and try to make him a ballplayer.

In Bartell, Rolfe picked the vinegar-tongued champ. Leo the Lip Durocher is soft-spoken and completely circumspect in his language compared to the fiery Bartell. He deliberately set out to provoke Wakefield into reacting with some dash. It began in the Tigers' first day of training when Rolfe called the squad on the field and Wakefield was the last to leave the clubhouse.

"Okay, Wakefield, get to work," screamed Bartell, "the picnic is over."

Conscious of the fact that he draws double the pay of Bartell, Wakefield retorted, "you wish you were on this picnic with me."

"Get out on that ball field and I'll run your head off," ordered Bartell.

THAT'S THE WAY it has been with Wakefield and Bartell. When the coach is batting fungoes to the other outfielders, he simply hits them out. When it's Wakefield's turn Bartell overlooks no insult. "Okay, Wakefield," he shouts, "get your lard after this one and see if it hurts you to run."

In the repartee, Wakefield's pretty good himself, though. Bartell was waiting for him one day and was told the player was in the clubhouse eating peanuts. He strode in and bawled "this ain't peanut-eating time, you're supposed to be learning how to play baseball."

"Aw, nuts," said Wakefield, "I'll be tossing you peanuts in a couple of years."

When Bartell told Wakefield the money wouldn't always come so easy unless he started to earn it for sure, the player was unimpressed.

"Lay off me," he said, "or maybe I'll have to buy up your contract and send you back to Kansas City."

THUS FAR, Bartell's psychology has only half succeeded. He has Wakefield bestirring himself in the outfield and running out infield hits, and even backing up plays, something he never did before, but in five exhibition games he is batting only .147, and has yet to drive in his first run. Rolfe has said that "he'll have to hit .300, or else."

Steve O'Neill, the ex-manager of the Tigers could have told Rolfe he'd have a time with Wakefield. O'Neill had him down in Beaumont before he came to the majors, and was telling about the day when Wakefield was caught napping off first base.

"I warned him he was taking too big a lead, but he said he wasn't," related O'Neill. "A couple of innings later he got another hit and was on first again. This time I told him to stay close. He said he wasn't too far off, and pointed to his feet, and the distance between him and the bag. While he was pointing, the same pitcher picked him off again. He was my biggest headache in Beaumont."

Vollmer's Fine Catch In 9th Saves Day for Nats

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Orlando, Fla., March 27.—The Nats today found somebody they could lick, the Detroit Tigers, no less, and squeaked past the ninth inning with a 3-2 victory to break a three-game losing streak.

Rookie Outfielder Clyde Vollmer denied the Tigers a tie in the ninth by scrambling with sensational haste to the deepest part of center field for a one-hand catch of a 400-foot smash by Johnny Groth, prize rookie outfielder of Detroit.

But the Tigers had no business being that close to tying the score because Sid Hudson and Mickey Haefner tamed 'em with six hits and with better support would have shut them out.

Hudson was awfully good again today and blanked the Tigers for five innings, allowing only three hits until they scored in the sixth with the help of a pair of wild throws by Eddie Yost and Al Kozar.

Bow of Gratitude

Haefner allowed only one hit in his three-inning stint and he had the good taste to bow low to outfielder Vollmer for saving his hide in the ninth on Groth's smash.

The Nats had a potent battery today. Catcher Al Evans walloped a fifth-inning home run a fur piece over the wall in left center and punctured the record of Marlin Stuart, Tiger pitching rookie from Little Rock, who has not allowed an earned run in 16 innings of pitching in exhibition games.

Walked Only One

Evans' homer touched off a two-run inning against Stuart in the fifth and the Nats upped their lead to 3 to 0 when Coan beat out an infield hit, Dente singled to right and Lewis did the same thing. They got nothing more out of the inning because Stuart fanned both Stewart and Yost.

Hudson was breaking off a sweet curve ball and throwing his fast one past the Tigers for five innings. He walked only one man and was unscored on despite Groth's double to right that led off the fifth. But in the sixth, Lipon singled and scored on consecutive wild throws by Yost and Kozar on ground balls.

The one run the Tigers achieved against Haefner was also unearned. Frank Overmire, the Tigers' second pitcher, reached first on a fumble by Yost, and scored on George Kell's double to right.

Their victory brought the Nats' score against major league opposition to the more respectable figures of four wins and five defeats . . . Clark Griffith missed his first game of the spring when he was bedded down with a cold . . . little Mickey Haefner got into the power hitting act when he walloped a ball over the head of Centerfielder Groth but ground rules held it to a two-bagger . . . Manager Joe Kuhel has appealed to the club's front office for more catching help with both Len Okrie and Jake Early suffering from sore arms and Al Evans an overworked backstop.

Ed Klieman is still favoring the knee he wrenched his first day out and won't pitch for another week . . . the Nats move over to Lakeland on Tuesday for another game with the Tigers after an open date tomorrow.

My Story . . . By Joe Louis

I Just Couldn't Seem to Figure Schmeling's Style

Ninth of 15 Installments

MAX SCHMELING set me back almost to where I started when he beat me in our first fight in Yankee Stadium in June in 1936. I wasn't but 22 then. I guess that night was the worst I ever had, counting before and since. There has been a lot of talk and a lot of guessing about what happened to me that night. All the odds were on me and I figured to win easy, but that Schmeling took me bad.

Mr. Roxborough blames it partly on the way we ran our training camp for the fight. We switched from Pompton Lakes to Lakewood for the training. We ran it kind of loose because we didn't figure this Schmeling would be much. Marva came down and stayed a few days. We kept late hours. We had a hot-seat in the hotel, a heavy chair to shock anybody who sat in it, and Mushky Jackson would get strangers to sit in it and we would turn on the juice. I got big laughs out of that.

That was the year I took up golf. Hype Igoe of the Journal and Walt Stewart of the World-Telegram broke me into it. Mr. Roxborough said that had more to do with my losing the Schmeling fight than anything else. He said the timing in golf is different. He say: you use different muscles and you lose your speed, and that golf dries a man out fast because it takes him out in the sun.

I never gave in to that argument. I say how about Jim McLarnin when he was welter champ; didn't he play golf all the while he held his title? I didn't argue about it with Mr. Roxborough any more, but I don't like to say anything to hurt golf. It's my best game now.

In all my fights I got hit more with rights than with lefts. Chappie worked on that, but it stayed my weak point. Chappie said that's the way it is, even with the greatest boxers. He told me there never was a better boxer than Joe Gans and Joe had his weakness and he got hit over and over. And that's what Schmeling figured out.

HE kept throwing rights. Something about his style that night I couldn't make out. I tried for his jaw, but he held me off with his left. He could hit. I opened a cut under his eye with a left in the fourth, but he fetched me a right on the chin that like to broke my jaw. Before I could shake it off he landed one more. I went down. I couldn't clear my head. When I got back on my feet my ears rang. My jaw raised like yeasty dough.

Chappie told me to keep my guard higher after that. It didn't help. Schmeling got hard rights to my face all the time, and my face swelled and I couldn't see so good. That was the only time that ever happened in all my fighting. In the fifth he smashed a right to my jaw after the bell rang. My guard was down. That right put me on the floor again.

My head wouldn't come clear and I couldn't hardly keep my eyes open. He finished me in the twelfth. Chappie had told me to forget about Schmeling's head and to work on his body, but I could hardly tell where my punches were landing. He put me out with more hard rights, and when the referee counted it come to me like through water. Chappie's voice tried to come to me, but it was like a train run over it and thinned it. It was only a ghost's voice.

I DIDN'T know it then, but Marva saw it all. She wasn't supposed to, but she came in with a woman writer. She got sick to her stomach and she wanted to get out, but this woman writer kept talking to her to stay on and she did. She says for a long time after that it was in her nightmares—seeing me on the ground with my face swelled out and my eyes closed, and hearing Schmeling's right hitting harder and harder.

When I came to in our hotel Chappie stood over me. They had my head and my eyes buried in ice packs. Vunies said my head looked like a watermelon; that big. I couldn't hardly talk with my lips puffed, but I told Mr. Roxborough, "This was my fault. If I'd done like you said, this wouldn't be." I promised I wouldn't golf.

Racing Returns to Bowie Today for 12-Day Stand

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

There's no rest for the weary bankroll.

With the District's illegal bookies somewhat Fay-ded, Maryland makes a legitimate bid for Washington's action-hungry bucks starting today.

Upward of 12,000 persons—some trying to buy baby a new pair of shoes, others hoping to get even and still others seeking to enjoy a day at the races—will converge on nearby Bowie for the opening of the 1949 Free State turf season.

It all adds up to a big day out on the Defense highway, where the ancestors of the present operators carved a race track out of what once was a pine woods.

Bowie, fast coming of age after being pushed around as a stepchild of Maryland racing, offers the $10,000 added Rowe Memorial Handicap as the main course at the start of its 12-day program and adds the usual seven side dishes, the whole thing shaping up as a tasty meal for eager racing beavers.

Ring Horses Entered

Washington will have rootin' as well as bettin' interest in the big sprint, first contested in 1930 and won that year by Battleship, which went on to annex a Grand National.

Gustave Ring of our town holds a strong hand in the Rowe, what with three capable steeds in the field of 13. His trainer, Charlie Feltner, former Berryville, Va., sheriff, has entered his big gun, Rare Jewel, winner of six races in Florida last winter, and could send postward in addition Kitchen Police and Top Pilot.

The Ring trio is rated second choice, however, to Irisen, owned by Mrs. O. L. Nyberg of Baltimore. The mare is reported on her feed and rarin' to go after

Lakers Beat Rochester in Opener, 80-79

Rochester, N. Y., March 27 (AP).—Arnie Ferrin's foul shot in the final six seconds gave Minneapolis an 80-79 victory over the Rochester Royals tonight and a one-game lead in the Basketball Association of America semifinals playoffs.

It was the first game of the best-of-three series between Western Division survivors. The next game is scheduled Tuesday in St. Paul.

An overflow crowd of nearly 4400 saw the Royals climax a long uphill fight by taking a 79 to 77 lead with a minute left. Tony Jaros dribbled in to score for the Lakers at the half minute mark. Then Ferrin was fouled by Arnie Risen and dropped in the winning point.

The Lakers, paced by their great center, George Mikan, led at the close of every period, 18 to 12, 46 to 34 and 67 to 56. They held an 18-point margin early in the second half.

Mikan dumped in 32 points, 14 of them in the third period.

Ferrin, rookie from Utah University, hit for 15 points on 6 baskets, all in the second quarter, and 3 free throws. Jim Pollard had 17 for the Lakers.

Turf Figure Buys Into Rams

Los Angeles, March 27 (AP).—James H. (Hal) Seley, wealthy business man and turf figure, has acquired an interest in the Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League.

Ring Officials Picking La Motta Face Quiz Today

New York, March 27 (U.P.).—Referee Harry Ebbets and Judge Harold Barnes, who voted an unpopular decision to Jake Lamotta over Robert Villemain Friday night, will appear for questioning before the New York Boxing commission at 1 p. m., tomorrow.

After the inquiry, Chairman Eddie Eagan will make a statement.

It was believed extremely unlikely that the commission will reverse the 12-round decision, despite widespread protests that an injustice had been done Villemain of France.

However, if the commission decides that Ebbets and Barnes blundered in scoring the bout, it may revoke their licenses, or suspend them.

Judge Charley Shortell, who voted for Villemain, will appear at the commission meeting as a reference witness.

Cards Win, 1-0, Dyer Chased

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 27 (AP).—St. Louis Manager Eddie Dyer was chased from the game by the umpires but his Cardinals went on to squeeze out a 1-0 victory over the New York Yankees before 2904 today.

The Cards scored the contest's only run in the fifth inning on a double by Country Slaughter and a single by Ed Sauer.

Dyer was thumbed out in the Yanks' half of the fifth when he protested a fourth ball to Charley Keller. Keller's walk filled the bases.

Giants Rout Mort Cooper

Los Angeles, March 27 (AP).—Sid Gordon blasted two home runs off Mort Cooper in the first three innings today but the New York Giants needed a pair of singles in the ninth inning to whip the Chicago Cubs, 8-6, before 9000 fans.

Gordon's homers, each with a man on base, were the first runs scored off Cooper this spring. The ex-Cardinal and Giant pitcher is trying a comeback with the Cubs.

The winning runs came home in the last frame on singles off Bob Rush by Johnny Mize and Gail Henley, a reserve outfielder. Mize also homered with one on in the fifth against Johnny Schmitz.

Chicago got single runs in the first and third and caught up temporarily in the seventh with a three run assault on Bill Ayers. Roy Smalley of the Cubs homered during the seventh inning rally with the bases empty.

Hole-in-One No Novelty to Duke Ace After 26

Links Star Flouts Odds of 10,486 to 1

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

A HOLE IN ONE may be the high water mark for the average golfer, but for Art Wall, captain of Duke's golf team, it's no novelty. He's made 26 aces according to Duke's record . . . The chances of scoring a hole in one as computed by the New York World Telegram, are 10,486 to one. In the 15-year-history of that paper's hole-in-one tourney, players took 52,340 shots, but mad eonly five aces . . . "Ace" Wall can be seen in action in this area April 16 when the Duke golfers play Navy at Annapolis . . . Jim Londos, the Greek wrestler who was No. 1 man when radio was in its infancy, is now the hottest thing on the West Coast, thanks to television, and has been booked for an appearance at Turner's Arena next month . . . The honor of being the Nation's youngest beauty queen belongs to Clay Keene Bernard, 13-year-old granddaughter of Heinie Miller, Maryland's boxing coach. She was elected queen of the Southern College Invitational Boxing Tournament at Columbia, S. C.

IF, AFTER all these years, you don't remember what kind of soap the Senators (baseball players, that is) use, you don't find out from the sign boards in Griffith Stadium this summer . . . Except for two large cigarette ads, the outfield boards will be bare. No more messages from Mr. Tash, no more reminders of that five o'clock shadow and no more suggestions as to where to eat after the ball game or where to call if your car stalls . . . The boards have been painted a solid green with the Chesterfield Company owning the only two signs in the park. . . . Chesterfield is reputed to have paid $100,000 for exclusive radio, video and advertising rights to Mr. Griffith's park. . . . Other improvements at the Nats park include new dressing quarters for the visiting team behind their third base dugout, 2000 new form-fitting box seats and a new wire screen behind home plate. . . . The all-green background makes the park a hitter's delight and now it's up to the Nats to come up with a few hitters to delight the customers.

THE CAPS are four-point favorites to whip the Knicks at the Armory Tuesday, but it's difficult to see how those odds were arrived at since the Knicks beat the same Cap team they'll face Tuesday (no Scolari and no Feerick) by 12 points at Uline's

Joe Haynes, whose arm is still a big question has a 66-61 log, while Milo Candini, a reliefer, owns a 24-21 mark . . . again when I was training, or go against what he said for me to do. Chappie and me talked a lot about it, too.

WE FIXED to work hard on how to block a right. They let me go back to my mother's in Detroit. She fed me good and took on over me like I was a boy again, and when I was right, me and Marva had a lot of fun out in the country and I came back to shape.

Early in July I left Marva to go to Pompton Lakes to train for a fight with Jack Sharkey in August in Yankee Stadium I used a lot of sparring partners working out Chappie's scheme to stop high rights. When I went out for the first round Chappie said Sharkey would try to work me like Schmeling did.

He said for me to box until I found a good opening. That's what I did. I knocked Sharkey down with a hard right in the second. After he got up I boxed a while for another opening and knocked him down again. He tried long rights on me, but Chappie had trained me for that. He kept missing. I knocked him out in the third. That Sharkey was a game fighter.

A MONTH later I went on against Al Ettore in Philadelphia. That was my best fight. I had everything that night. It was like I was doing a fight for a movie—just set up. I told Chappie before the fight, "I'll get him before the sixth." I put him out in the fifth. I felt good that night, like I never felt before. Writers thought Schmeling had beat the heart out of me, but they were wrong.

I don't think I was ever better than about that time. Chappie had got me so I was hard to hit. I had enough ring experience to figure out what any man was up to. I had real confidence.

I beat Jorge Brescia in the Hippodrome on October 9, 1936, in three rounds. I went around the country on exhibition, and I knocked out four fighters in South Bend and New Orleans, all inside three rounds. On December 14 in Cleveland Stadium I knocked out Eddie Simms in 26 seconds.

Then they signed me to fight Bob Pastor in Madison Square Garden. He just ran a race. I couldn't hit him because he wouldn't stay put. Chappie got burned up. He said for me to pin Pastor in a corner. I couldn't do it. He stayed the 10 rounds. I always felt bad about that fight.

Less than a month after that I fought Natie Brown again, in Kansas City. I knocked him out in four rounds.

(A chance at the title. Louis recalls the Braddock scrap tomorrow.)

Snead, Mangrum Tie at Greensboro, Play Off Today

Stranahan, Worsham 2 Strokes Back

Greensboro, N. C., March 27 (U.P.).—Sammy Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., stormed up from behind to tie Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago with 276 each for first place in the Greensboro Open Golf tournament today.

Snead, twice a champion before on Greensboro's Starmont Links, slammed around the final in 70, one-under par. Mangrum went into the last 18 holes with a two-stroke lead, after a brilliant morning round, but the gruelling day took its toll and he carded a 72.

They will meet in an 18-hole play-off for the first prize of $2000 starting at 1 p. m. tomorrow. The loser will get $1400 and each will get a share of the gate receipts.

Mangrum went into the lead during the morning session when he belted a three-under-par 68. Snead was two strokes behind at that point, but made it up on the final tour with cool, calculated play.

Snead Gets Out of Trap

Snead calmly shot his way out of a rough on the fifth hole and later a deep green trap on the tenth. When he came down to the final hole he was tied with Mangrum at 272 strokes each.

Snead's second shot flipped onto the green and stopped 18 feet from the cup. His putt was 2 inches short, and both he and Mangrum holed out with birdie 4s for the 276 deadlock.

Two strokes behind the leading pair came another duet—former United States Open champion Lew Worsham of Washington, D. C., and British Amateur Champion Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, each with 278.

Stranahan had set the pace for the first two rounds of the tourney but lost the lead when he went around the course in the morning round in two-over-par 73. He was under-par with a 70 in the afternoon.

But Worsham was four-under with a blistering 67 to gain the tie.

Locke, Metz Tie

Bobby Locke of South Africa was tied with Dick Metz of Virginia Beach, Va., at 279. Under par in each of the first three rounds, Locke went two-over with a 73 on the final nine.

Cary Middlecoff, the Memphis, Tenn., dentist who had been the scourge of the tourney trail, was a big disappointment. Dr. Cary, five strokes off the pace after the first two rounds, was three-over-par with 74 in the morning, then came back slightly with 70 this afternoon. He wound up in a tie for 13th place with 284.

Lloyd Mangrum, 67, 69, 68, 72—276.
Sam Snead, 68, 69, 69, 70—276.

Homers Aid Giants Win

Los Angeles, March 27 (U.P.).—Two home runs by Sid Gordon and one by Johnny Mize helped the New York Giants defeat the Chicago Cubs, 8 to 6, today before 10,778 fans.

PREPARING FOR BOWIE OPENING—While thousands of fans will crowd the popular nearby track for today's inaugural program, Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Ring of Washington, get as big a kick out of a morning at the track as they do out of an afternoon at the races. Their stable, powerful factor in Florida racing, promises to carry on in Maryland. The Rings look on as Trainer Charles Feltner examines the knee of Respingo, South American importation. Jockey L. shipping. North from the Miami area where she won four races.

Anything that whips the aforementioned quartet will pay off substantially. The long-shot artists will have several crack sprinters as meat for thought including Bomar Stable's Piet, Bobanet's King Midas, Dion Kerr, jr.'s, Flying Weather, Clarence Hartwick's Flag Drill and others—all having been led, at one time or another, into the winner's circle at nearby ovals.

Ready For Distance

Our open winter is evidenced by the fact that today's program is equally divided between sprint and distance races. Usually, at this time, sprints predominate because many of the routers are not fit for strenuous action. However, most of the horses wintered hereabouts have been in training for six weeks and will be ready to give good account of themselves.

Bowie, with its white and green motif, is spic and span as the well-known Dutch kitchen. The racing surface is in the best shape ever, so the horsemen say, and providing a fast track is the order the Rowe may bring a new record to top the mark of 1.11 4-5 set by Whitey Abel's Honey Cloud in the 1940 running.

Post time for the first race is 2 p.m. with daily double, as usual on the first and second races, closing 15 minutes earlier.

Chance to build yourself a private pyramid, folks. See you on the rail.

AT BOWIE

If the Bowie track doesn't have a successful meeting it won't be the fault of its general manager who signs his name "J. Ed O'Hara." For many weeks Eddie has been beating the tomtoms for his track. A Baltimorean tells me that lately it seems that every time a radio or a television is turned on in his city, O'Hara is being intervewed on his favorite subject. Eddie hasn't overlooked the possibility of Washington having customers. He had made many trips here for publicity purposes, some for early morning air shows at an hour when most race track operators are still under the sheets. Bowie's betting may fall off due to the national trend, but it won't be for lack of the old O'Hara try. All we need is winners. Here they are (I hope):

1—On, Eastern Flyaway, Wiley Fox.
2—Fenty O., Rough Ordy, Little Gaucho.
3—Fancy Answer, Dizzy Dame, Jr., Monifieth.
4—On The River, Naval Base, Retintin.

Parker, Von Cramm Win Egyptian Title

Alexandria, Egypt, March 27 (AP).—Frank Parker of Los Angeles and Gottfried von Cramm of Germany today defeated Budge Patty of Los Angeles and Jack Harper of Australia, 3—6, 6—2, 6—2, 5—8, 7—5, in the men's doubles final of the Alexandria international tennis tournament.

16 Title Bouts Set Tomorrow On AAU Card

Sixteen bouts are carded for Turner's Area tomorrow night in the finals of the DCAU boxing championships. Eight bouts in all weight classes in both novice and senior division commence at 8:30 p. m.

Team championships are of only slightly less importance in this event than the individual championships. The lure to the teams are the DCAAU trophy to the winning senior group and the Sports Center trophy to the winning novice aggregation.

Apollo Club, with three men in the senior division finals, is in the best position to cop that award, but Olympic Club and Police Boys' Club No. 2, both have two men in the last bracket and also are threats.

Apollo will be represented by featherweight David Jacobs and Willie Davis, 135-pound class titlist last year who is shooting for the senior crown this year, and defending heavyweight champion Eddie Grant. Grant also won the Golden Gloves title this year and is shooting for a clean sweep.

P. B. C. No. 2 is banking on Connie Wilkins, a welter, and 160-pounder Eddie Marshall, winner of the lightheavy crown last year. Olympic Club is countering with Jimmy Caraway, 118-pound Golden Gloves ruler, and lightweight Dave Robinson.

Police Boys Clubs Nos. 2 and 4 both have three men in the novice class finals. No. 2 has bantamweight Dave Zimmerman, Bill Hickerson, 135-pounder, and Joe Grant, heavy. No. 4 has the featherweight division sewed up with Jim Haiber and Walter Propps, the two finalists both representing No. 4. Bill Maxfield in the 112-pound class in No. 4's other finalist.

Sports Club Wins; Clinches at Least Tie for Crown

Maryland Sports Club vaulted over Sugar Radio and OSIA, both of whom have finished their Washington Suburban Soccer League schedule and assured itself of at least a tie for first place by defeating Waldorf, 3-1, yesterday.

Lou Tierney, J. Kastulke and Ace Pikett scored for the Sports Club, while Russ Evan tallied Waldorf's lone marker.

Martin's Bakery and Maryland Sports Club will meet on April 10, and if Martin's wins it will necessitate a playoff between the two to decide the winner of the second half. The winner of the second half will meet Sugar Radio, winners of the first half, for the season's crown.

Stribling, Hansbury Head Show in 10-Rounder Tonight

Ken Stribling and Johnny Hansbury, a pair of "retiring" local middleweights, get the 10-round feature spot in tonight's boxing show at Turner's Arena.

Within the last few months both Stribling and Hansbury have been the cause of two outstanding boxers going into at least temporary retirement.

Stribling did it to Smuggy Hursey, a recent Washington favorite, with an easy decision. Hansbury's victim was Laverne Roache, a nationally rated fighter until he lost out to scrappy John as a 6-1 favorite.

Stribbling, whose career was high-lighted by a loss to high-ranking Jake LaMotta, goes into tonight's scrap on the long end of the odds.

He will be facing a youngster who is making his first start since breaking a hand in a winning effort against Johhny Holt.

Hansbury has also kayoed Sonny Bunn and Al Wright, and drew with Frank Lacey. Stribling holds knockouts over Joe Gannon and Frank Sweeney.

In the five-round semifinal Washington's Jimmy Jones goes against Baltimore's Ike Martin.

Four-rounders pit featherweights Little Dynamite and Eddie Woodson, Welterweights Al Harris and Ralph Gonzales, Middleweights Gene Garner and Johnny Sullivan, and Heavyweights Ben Harrison and Joe Bickle.

Bosox Beat Phils; Ted, Dropo Star

Sarasota, Fla., March 27 (U.P.).—The Boston Red Sox staged a four-run rally in the fifth inning today against Robin Roberts to beat the Philadelphia Phillies, 5 to 1.

In the big rally, two of the Sox runs were driven in by Ted Williams with a single and the other two crossed the platter on a double by rookie First Baseman Walt Dropo. Williams had a hand in the only Phil run, misplaying a windblown fly ball hit by Del Ennis and letting Ennis reach third on the error whence he scored on Bill Nicholson's infield hit.

Earl Himel Stops Charging Papa Bear

Earl G. Himel, of Forest Hills, L. I., tells this story. "My brother and I had a close call while hunting bear near Marshall's Creek, Pa. A big 'blackie' caught us by surprise and charged us, growling. Two fast shots from my lever action Marlin 30-30 stopped him. A cub scampered away. Our bear, it turned out, was not his mother, but a protective papa!"

"And for fast-shaving blades that can take it, give me Marlins every time!" adds Mr. Himel. "100 Marlin Blades lasted me a full year in the South Pacific." Single or Double Edge—12 for 25c; Economy Packs 25 for 50c, 100 for $1.

Shrine Circus Opens At Arena Tonight

Just Clowning Around a Bit

SA-SO,
is a clown. Clowns appear in circuses. The circus is here. It starts at 8:15 tonight at Uline's Arena. It will play 13 matinee and evening shows. It is the Eighth Annual Shrine Circus. That's Mike at left, Ike at right. They are baby tiger cats. They're in Dick Clemen's wild animal show at the circus

Uline Arena was transferred into a "Big Top" yesterday for the first performance of the eighth annual Shrine Circus at 8:15 p. m. today.

Sweating circus hands were feverishly working all over the sawdust-floored interior, throwing up the equipment for the aerial performers, swinging the two cannon into place for the simultaneous shooting of two girls in opposite directions, checking and repairing trappings for men and beasts.

European stars, making their first American tour and unable to speak English, were restlessly wandering around, inspecting their equipment, trying to make themselves understood by the harried circus hands.

From under the stands, caged tigers and lions were roaring an accompaniment to the pounding hammers, and the fishy odor of seals was in the air.

Circus people expected to work right up to the grand entry and processional pageant officially opening the 38-act, three-ring circus held for the benefit of the Almas Temple Charities and Activities Fund in the area, 3d and M sts. nw.

All Almas Temple uniformed units, the Oriental and regular Shrine bands, and the Legion of Honor will join the circus performers and animals in the inaugural pageantry. More music will be furnished by Joe Basile and his Madison Square Garden circus band.

Illustrious Potentate Renah F. Camalier will lead the parade around the three rings.

Camalier, Julius B. Gay, general chairman; Howard P. Foley, director and founder, and Dr. William M. Mann, director of the National Zoological Park and chief adviser of the Shrine's circus acts committee, all call this year's circus the "biggest, 'bestest' and greatest" of the eight which Almas Shriners have staged since 1942.

Among the highlights of the almost wholly new show produced by the Hamid-Morton Circuit under the personal direction of Col. Robert H. (Bob) Morton, is the balancing act of The Great Athos. The 146-pound star, lately arrived from Sweden, balances himself upon his right forefinger. He said yesterday that unlike other one-finger performers he does not use a concealed glove.

The show will be given at 8:15 p. m. daily through Sunday, with matinees starting Tuesday at 2:15 p. m. Tickets are priced at $1.20, $1.80, $2.40 and $3. They are on sale at Almas Temple, 1315 K st. nw.; Stabler's (in Lubar's) 13th and G sts. nw., and at Uline's.

To Speak Tuesday

Dr. Eloise Kailin, associate editor of the American Journal of Allergy and Washington representative of the National Pollen Survey Committee, will speak on "Hay Fever, Asthma, and the Allergies," at the Jewish Community Center, 1529 16th st., nw., Tuesday at 8:30 p. m.

C&P to Spend 2.55 Millions In Virginia

Richmond, Va., March 27 (AP).—The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. has announced the approval of expenditures of $2,556,000 for the improvement and expansion of communication facilities.

It said the major portion of the amount, or $2,240,000, will be spent in the construction, replacement, and removal of telephone plants in Virginia during the second quarter of 1949.

[Robert H. Davidson, Commercial supervision of Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. of Washington, said part of the funds have been earmarked for construction and improvement in Alexandria and in Fairfax and Arlington counties, although a breakdown on the work was unavailable. He said the breakdown will be made public possibly this week.]

More than $60,000 was authorized to convert 35 of the company's toll circuits to intertoll dial operation in Charlottesville and to provide five additional circuits.

A total of $36,000 was marked for the replacement and modification of station equipment preparatory to converting Suffolk's telephone system to dial operation. The conversion will inovolve replacement of 775 manual telephones with dial instruments and installing more than 4000 dials on telephones at subscribers' premises, the company said.

Norman M. Tucker Made World Bank Marketing Chief

Mr. Tucker

John J. McCloy, president of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, yesterday announced that Norman M. Tucker has been appointed Director of Marketing for the bank. Tucker will assume his duties at the bank's marketing office in New York on April 1.

The position has been vacant since the resignation of E. Fleetwood Dunstan at the end of 1948. McCloy said Tucker will continue the bank's policy of keeping institutional investors and securities dealers informed of the bank's operations, and will have charge of the development of future borrowing and marketing, in the United States and abroad.

Since January, 1938, Tucker has been West Coast representative for the Chase National Bank of New York, and in that connection has been dealing with institutional investors, securities dealers and financial institutions in 11 Western States. Previously he had owned his own firm, California Municipal Statistics, Inc. Before that he was with the National City Co.

Paul Olefsky Recital Outstanding

By Richard Keith

Yesterday afternoon at the Phillips Gallery, Paul Olefsky, 20-year-old first cellist of the Philadelphia Orchestra, offered a recital which was outstanding not only in performance but also in choice of program.

With the exception of a transcription from Sarasate, there was none of the usual display drivel which so often clutters up cellists' programs.

After opening with a transcription of a Frescobaldi Toccata, Mr. Olefsky played the Schumann Concerto, Op. 129. This work falls far short of the symphonic dimensions of a great concerto. It definitely belongs, with the exception of the pleasant second movement, to the long list of Schumann's unsuccessful experiments. Yesterday's performance was restrained but romantic enough to express the mood of the music.

The high point of the recital was the Bach Suite No. 6 for solo cello. Mr. Olefsky played through this extremely difficult work with a self-confidence that prevented its ever falling to the level of aimless, etude-like repetition, a level at which these solo suites often find themselves when in the hands of performers of less talent. While this particular suite as a whole does not seem to be as interesting as some of the others, the gavottes are among the best that Bach wrote in this form.

The Robert Parris Sonata, which received its first performance yesterday, should really be called Sonata for piano with cello. This is a descriptive not a disparaging remark for there is certainly nothing wrong with writing such a sonata. Throughout, most of the musical delevopment occurs in the piano part while the cello is left with the simple statements of themes and ornamentation. Although not a profound work, it shows much inventiveness and an unusual clarity of form.

Mr. Olefsky is a brilliant performer and seems always to be the master of his unwieldy instrument. His tone is rich and warm but occasionally succumbs, in the upper registers, to that odd gasping which is such a common ailment of cello playing.

Eileen Flissler's accompaniments, particularly the Parris Sonata, were excellent.

CSC Decision Likely To Mean More Pay for Claims Examiners

A decision by the Civil Service Commission is likely to lead to professional ratings and higher salaries for hundreds of claims examiners. More than 500 employes who stand to benefit from it are in the General Accounting Office here. Most large agencies have similar jobs.

At stake is the reclassification of CAF-10 claim examiner jobs to P-4. The Grade 10 jobs have a salary range from $4855 to $5608, the P-4s from $5232 to $6235. Indirectly, the ruling would affect similar jobs up and down the line.

Civil Service's board of appeals and review and its Classification Division have jointly recommended that the Grade 10 jobs be reclassified as P-4s. The full Civil Service Commission has tentatively approved the change. GAO also recommended professional ratings for its examiners. The Grade 10 examiners, however, had hoped to get P-5 ratings.

LIARS' CONTEST: One is being held among the 11,000 employes at the Naval Gun Factory here. This was one of the entries:

"We formerly pitched horseshoes during our lunch period. Our league grew until half of the employes were playing in it. I was very good, winning every game. The others tried every trick to beat me. Finally, I was ruled out. I offered to give them a handicap if they would let me play. They agreed, but I kept right on winning just the same.

"The handicap was that I had to pitch without taking the shoes off the horse."

GERARD F. TREANOR is a new member of the Excess Profits Tax Council. He's a former SEC attorney and more recently legal adviser to the Army Price Adjustment Board . . . Look alikes: Senator Herbert O'Conor and his administrative assistant, A. J. Bourbon . . . Senator Martin (R., Pa.) paid a nice tribute to George Bloom, his administrative assistant the other day on the Senator floor.

STORY: When James Boyd was sworn in as director of the Bureau of Mines the other day, he received two checks for 15 months of back pay. The first check was for $4523.36. He quickly indorsed it and then handed it over to his wife with this comment:

"I hope to get the 36 cents back."

And there's a lot of truth in what he said. After Boyd pays the tax collector and returns the money he borrowed to remain in his job he won't have much of it left.

PAY PLAN: CIO's anti-Communist Government Workers Union has come up with its own plan which would (1) give each classified employe a pay raise, and (2) revise the Classification Act. The GWU proposal will be introduced soon in Congress. It proposes 11 new grades with salary rates as follows:

New grade 1 would be composed only of the present CPC-1. The present salary range is $1410 to $1732. GWU proposes it be raised to $2080 to $2380. New grade 2, to be made up of CPC 2 & 3, SP 1 & 2, CM-1 and CAF-1. The salary range from $2020 to $2573 would be raised to $2450 to $3050.

New grade 3 would be a merger of CPC 4 & 5, SP 3 & 4, CM-2, and CAF 2 & 3. The salary range from $2284 to $3024 would be raised to $3050 to $3630. New grade 4 would combine CPC 6 & 7, SP 5 & 6, CM 3 & 4, CAF 4 & 5 and P-1. The salary range would be lifted from $2724 to $3727 to $3650 to $4400. New grade 5 would be present grades of CPC 8 & 9; SP 7 & 8, CAF 6 & 7, and P-2. The salaries would be raised from $3138 to $4479 to $4400 to $5300.

New grade 6 would be composed of CAF 8 & 9; CPC-10, and P-3. The salary range from $3978 to $5232 would be changed to $5300 to $6200. New grade 7, CAF 10 & 11 and P-4, and salaries from $4855 to $6235 raised to $6200 to $7400; new grade 8, CAF-12 and P-5, $6235 to $7192 lifted to $7400 to $8900. New grade 9, CAF-13 and P-6, $7432 to $8398, to $8900 to $10,400. New grade 10, CAF-14 and P-7, $8509 to $9706, to $10400 to $11,900, and finally, new grade 11, $10305 to $10,330, to $11,900 to $13,700.

OTHER pay plans similar to GWU's proposal will be unveiled soon. Four different members of Congress are known to be working on them. All of them will be more liberal than the Administration's secret proposal to revise the Classification Act.

D. C. Policy Jeopardizes Reciprocity On Taxes

Barring Exemption For British Envoy's Residence Worries State Department

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

A District government policy of tightening up on tax exemptions for foreign government-owned properties is jeopardizing a State Department tax reciprocity program, it was learned last night.

The District Commissioners have refused to grant the United Kingdom an exemption from payment of property taxes on the residence of Sir Frederick Hoyer Millar, British Minister, at 2404 Kalorama rd. nw.

The decision was made on the basis of an opinion by the city's legal department that the structure was not used for "legation purposes."

Tax Assessor Edward A. Dent has subjected all requests by foreign governments for additional tax exemptions to close scrutiny, arguing that the District's fiscal plight is difficult enough without whittling further at the tax base.

Other Nations Exempt Us

The State Department, through which the requests are submitted to the District, has argued that foreign governments have granted tax exemptions to the American government on buildings overseas and that these frequently represent larger sums than the taxes involved here.

Leland W. King, jr., associate chief of the Foreign Building Operations of State Department, said last night that the District decision was a "matter of considerable importance to us." The decision "could upset our tax relations with other countries," he pointed out.

At present, the United States and other governments are forced to purchase more and more buildings for use as residences, offices, warehouses and similar needs for diplomatic units as high rents force outright purchase, Henry Charles Spruks, assistant chief, State Department protocol section, said.

This results in more attention to the tax exemption problem, he said. The Department is pursuing a "quid pro quo" policy in arranging for reciprocal tax exemptions, he declared.

Earlier Requests Denied

Raymond J. Nolan, legal adviser in the Foreign Service Administration, who prepared the tax exemption request, said the District has turned down similar recommendations in the past.

His position was that granting exemptions would save the Federal Government a million dollars in taxes overseas at a cost of much less loss in taxes here. However, he declared the legations, purchasing missions and similar units are here for the benefit of the entire country, rather than just the District. And Congress should be asked to compensate the District for tax losses.

Nolan revealed that in addition to the buildings now used for diplomatic purposes, the Federal Government has acquired many structures under the Surplus Property Act in India, Burma, China, Arabia, Belgium, Great Britain and the Philippine Islands. These, too, will add to the United States tax bill overseas unless the reciprocal tax exemption program is worked out, Noland pointed out.

D. C. Detective Suspended on Liquor Charge

Detective Sergeant Richard J. Felber was suspended from the police force yesterday, charged with "being under the influence of liquor to such an extent as to be unfit for service as a policeman."

Suspension followed a fracas between Felber and two newspaper photographers, Eugene Jones of The Washington Post, and his brother, Charles, of the Times-Herald. The fracas occurred at 1:15 a. m., at the 17th st. entrance of the Mayflower Hotel.

Inspector Oscar Letterman, in charge of the Police Department, suspended Felber at 4:2[illegible] a. m. A policeman for 17 years, Felber was off duty at the time and in evening clothes.

Jones and his brother had responded to a police radio broadcast that a shooting had occurred at the 17th st. address.

An ambulance responding to the call reported a sick man on the sidewalk who refused hospital treatment.

Inspector Letterman said "apparently Jones and his brother tried to make a picture and Felber objected."

Home Rule Bill Chances Called 'Best'

Four District home rule supporters declared in a radio broadcast yesterday that prospects of passage of the Senate's District Charter bill "appear brighter today than at any time in the past."

Speakers who discussed the "D. C. Vote" on the third anniversary broadcast of "Americans All" over WOOK, and on the eve of congressional hearings on home rule, were:

Woolsey W. Hall, past president, Federation of Civic Associations; Guy A. Caponetto, first vice president, D. C. Central Suffrage Conference, Inc.; Culver B. Chamberlain, president, Unitarian Laymen's League, and Mrs. Charles H. Weston, a past officer, D. C. League of Women Voters. Tomlinson D. Todd, director of "Americans All" and president of the Institute on Race Relations, was moderator.

Hall said "home rule seems to be in sight." He added that Senate Bill 1365, introduced March 23 by Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) "is a comprehensive, excellent bill."

On the "woman's angle," Mrs. Weston remarked that "women are equipped and eager to take an active part in District government."

Caponetto, who is also Exalted Ruler of the Washington Lodge of Elks, said:

"After 71 years, it is about time Congress corrected the mistake it made in 1878 and restored full American voting rights to residents of the District.

"Adoption—and speedily—of S. 1365 will accomplish this. As a member of organized labor and a native of Washington, I cannot urge too strongly that if you believe in your Americanism, get back of this bill and urge Congress to adopt it."

Chamberlain termed Senator Kefauver's bill "a simple and reasonable measure" which simply provides that Washington shall hereafter be operated like all other American cities." "In other words," he concluded, "enactment of this provision will simply re-Americanize our Capital City."

Public hearings on the Senate's bill will begin today at 10 a. m. in the Senate District Committee room at the Capitol.

Cherry Buds Popped by Heat; Hormones to Prolong Life

It was a bee-yoo-tiful day in Washington, yesterday.

Cherry blossoms were popping out all over the place, and people were thick as pigeons in all the local parks.

Park Police said they could not estimate the crowd but there were a "lot of people"—many more than had been expected, and that there was a steady flow of traffic around Hains Point and the Tidal Basin from 3 to 5 p. m.

Like all good things, however, it ended abruptly last night.

Between 8:20 and 9 p. m., a rain squall, with winds up to 35 miles an hour, drenched a large portion of Greater Washington.

After the storm, Potomac Electris Power Co. had reports of a half-dozen wires whipped down in Brookland and Brightwood Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. said water leaking into a cable conduit near 14th and Harvard sts. nw. interrupted nearby service for about an hour.

Yesterday's day-time spring-type weather began stirring the city into festive mood for the Cherry Blossom Festival activities Friday night and Saturday and Sunday.

Yesterday's weather was just a little hotter than balmy and just a little cooler than the record. The high for the day was 83, at 3:40 p. m. The record still stays with 1921, when the thermometer climbed to 86 on March 27.

To Get Hormone Spray

Throngs at the Tidal Basin could see at least a few cherry blossoms on nearly every tree, with most of them bursting into bud. Plans are to spray the blossoms early this week with growth-regulating plant hormones. The hormones are expected to double the normal five-day life of the blooms.

Today is forecast as another ideal day for viewing the cherry blossoms. The weatherman promises a "lovely" day, fair, warm, with temperatures no higher than the low 70s.

The swan boat started off the season yesterday with frequent trips around the Tidal Basin.

To Select Queen at Ball

Cherry blossom festivities this year will get under awy with a pre-festival ball Friday night at the Armory auditorium. A highlight of the ball will be the selection of the Cherry Blossom Queen, from a group of 51 princesses.

Miss Jody Miller, Miss Washington in 1943, will spin a huge Wheel of Fortune for the selection. The queen will be crowned Saturday afternoon by Interior Secretary Julius A. Krug at the Sylvan Theater on the Monument Grounds.

Charlie Spivak and his orchestra and Barnee and his Shoreham Blue Room Dance Orchestra will furnish music for the ball.

Concert First Event

Actual festival ceremonies will begin at 12:30 p. m. Saturday when the United States Navy Band will give a concert at the Sylvan Theater in the Monument Grounds.

The concert will be followed by the festival, "The Story of the Cherry Blossom Seedling," divided into three scenes, the flower's early life in the Orient, the planting of the seedling on the banks of the Tidal Basin and as the tree reaches maturity, the Cherry Blossom Queen appears at its base and holds court, with fifty princesses. The pageant is to be repeated Sunday at 2 p. m.

A water carnival will be given Saturday night at the Tidal Basin. Daniel A. Leonard of the American Red Cross, chairman of the pageant, said it will feature intricate maneuvering by small boats and canoes. The pageant will be floodlighted and each boat will be outlined in phosphorus paint.

Monument Open Until 10

The Washington Monument will remain open until 10 p. m. Saturday.

The United States Marine Corps Band will give concerts on both Saturday and Sunday from 8 p. m. to 9:30 p. m. on the steps of the Jefferson Memorial.

Tickets for the festival are priced at $1 for adults and 60 cents for children, tax included. A mobile caravan is touring the city to dispense the tickets.

2 Safes Recovered by Police, Only One Reported Missing

Two recovered safes but only one report of a safe theft created a problem yesterday for police.

One of the safes was found in a woodshed in the rear of a home in the 200 block of P st. nw. The safe door had been ripped open with tools, police said.

That safe matched a description of the one reported stolen sometime Friday night from the Western Union office at 1011 U st. nw., according to police. It had contained $400 in cash and an undetermined amount in stamps and money orders.

Where the second safe, which was found in the 5000 block of E st. se., belongs is still an unanswered question for police. It is a small green safe, the top of which had been ripped off.

Police are keeping it in hope some merchant, when he returns to business today, will discover the theft.

The nude body of a 26-year-old woman, who had been strangled, was found yesterday morning in the rear of the 600 block of Columbia rd. nw.

The woman was the third victim of death by violence in the District within nine hours.

Earlier in the morning a 33-year-old man was shot to death, while late Saturday night a 40-year-old man was fatally stabbed.

The woman was identified as Mrs. Edna Crump of 2355 Sherman ave. nw. She was found shortly after 8 a. m. yesterday on the steps at the rear of a home. She was pronounced dead at the scene by an Emergency Hospital staff doctor.

Police said her clothes were scattered around the alley.

Shortly before midnight, Homicide Squad Capt. Jeremiah Flaherty said a 22-year-old student, believed a companion of Mrs. Crump, had been arrested at his home and was being questioned at police headquarters.

Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy, who performed an autopsy at the District Morgue, said Mrs. Crump had been strangled by someone's hands. There were cuts and bruises on her head, police said.

Roy Lowery, 33, of 738 New Jersey ave. nw., died at Casualty Hospital at 4:50 a. m. yesterday, two hours after he was shot in the head, left shoulder and right arm in an altercation in the back yard of 740 New Jersey ave. nw.

Nose Broken

A Traffic Division policeman received a broken nose and his service revolver was stolen when he attempted to stop a fight at a dance at the National Press Building Saturday night.

He is Pvt. Daniel A. Hoadley, 28, who lives at 4013 Kennedy st., Hyattsville, Md. He was admitted to Emergency Hospital shortly after the fracas and sent home yesterday afternoon.

According to police, Hoadley was punched in the nose and kicked in the groin, when he tried to break up a fight, which had started between three men at the public dance. Hoadley was off duty at the time. Another Traffic Division policeman, Pvt. Rudyard Y. Hesse, who was also off duty and at the dance, interceded, police said.

One of the three men knocked Hoadley's .38-caliber service revolver from his hand and the three fled before police reinforcements arrived, police said.

Inquest Called In Man's Death After Tussle

A coroner's inquest will be held today in the death of James E. McKeever, 46, of 904 Hamilton st. nw., who collapsed from a heart attack during a tussle with his son-in-law Saturday night.

The son-in-law, Robert Franklin Kelley, 24, of 1412 Decatur st. nw., has been charged with manslaughter.

The men grappled in front of McKeever's home, when he interceded in an argument between Kelley and Kelley's wife, Mrs. Patricia Ann Kelley, 21, police said.

McKeever suddenly slumped to the ground. He was taken to Freedmen's Hospital, where he was pronounced dead. Deputy Coroner Christoper J. Murphy, following an autopsy, yesterday attributed death to a heart attack.

Kelley, who is employed as a floorwalker at Lansburgh's department store, is separated from his wife, police said. Saturday night he went to the home of her mother and stepfather, with whom she is staying, to talk with her. it was related. She was out.

Kelley waited half an hour on the front porch and an argument ensued, police said, when she returned home in a car driven by a man who was not identified by the police. Kelley reportedly slapped Mrs. Kelley.

The McKeevers came outside, and McKeever and Kelley grappled, then McKeever fell.

Catholic Men Go To Special Mass And Breakfast

The Very Rev. David Nugent, provincial of the Society of Jesus for the Maryland province, warned yesterday that treaties and good neighbor relations have little meaning if there is no divine conviction in the lives of individuals and nations.

He addressed 500 men at a communion breakfast of the Washington Archdiocese League for Laymen's Retreats in the National Press Club. The breakfast followed a special mass celebrated by Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle at St. Patrick's Church, which was attended by more than 700.

Warning of the growth of secularism, Father Nugent noted that in the 200 words of the Mayflower compact, God was mentioned five times. Later historic documents, he said, used the name of God less frequently. The Deity was not mentioned at all in the Versailles Treaty, nor in the United Nations Charter, he stated.

The Rev. Neil Gargan, S. J., rector of St. Aloysius Church and president of Gonzaga High School, who gave the sermon at St. Patrick's, told of plans for the new retreat house to be built this year at St. Thomas' Manor, Bel Alton, Md.

Expecting Second Child Soon, Young Wife Is Aggrieved Because Otherwise Devoted Husband Dislikes Her in Reproductive Role

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Jim's family didn't want him to marry and didn't come to our wedding five years ago. His mother is a "mom," his father a periodic alcoholic, and his sister—just out of college—would rather spend an evening at home than go out with a boy friend.

Unfortunately, we were stationed in their city during our first year of marriage, and at their insistence we had to spend every weekend and all our spare time in their home. When we told them I was pregnant they were very angry, and Jim's mother protested she was too young to be a grandmother. Later they rallied sufficiently to choose a name for the child.

Jim wasn't quite ready to welcome a first child, but I was rather stubborn about it, because I was slated to stay with my mother while he went overseas; and I thought I would be more useful caring for a child than going back to office work. Jim didn't return until Junior was nearly two years old; but they had no difficulty adjusting to a normal father-son relationship.

Man Angrily Says He Can't Help It

OUR SECOND child will be born next month, and Jim's attitude towards me during this pregnancy has been one of revulsion to the function of child-bearing. He refuses to admit that his attitude is a problem or to seek help for it. When I try to discuss it he gets angry, says he can't help it, and that without doubt he will find me attractive again after the child is here.

Nearly two years ago I lost a child that we both wanted very much; so Jim isn't "rejecting" fatherhood. He seems to enjoy parenthood and hopes to have several children. But I can't accept pregnancy again if it is to be shadowed by shamed hurt feelings for me; nor can I love Jim wholeheartedly if, at the same time, I must "forgive" such humiliation. Am I unduly sensitive? Can you explain his attitude? Please advise me. J. S.

Man's Morbidity Refers to 'Mom'

DEAR J. S.: It occurs to me that Jim's involuntary revulsion to you in the child-bearing role may be a by-product of "buried" distaste for his own mother's Queen Bee personality, which is possessive and deadly in a self-centered way.

Perhaps unconsciously he feels that women, in the reproductive role, are noxiously self-important or self-sufficient, hence repellent to a sensitive, would-be husband-lover. Also, that these aggressive mother-types ruthlessly exploit men's romantic sentiments as a cunning means to an end, namely: the woman's achievement of

Woman's Party Conclave Convenes Here Friday

Women from all parts of the Nation will arrive in Washington this week to attend the national convention of the National Woman's Pary, April 1, 2 and 3.

Attorney General Tom C. Clark, Senator Lester C. Hunt, former Governor of Wyoming, the first equal suffrage State; Representative Katherine Price Collier St. George of New York, chief sponsor of the amendment in the House of Representatives, will be after after-dinner speakers with Miss Anita Pollitzer, national chairman of the National Woman's Party, at the convention banquet Saturday night, April 2, at the Washington Hotel. Greetings of the two major political parties will be presented by Mrs. India Edwards, director of the women's division, Democratic National Committee, and Mrs. Robert W. Macauley, vice chairman, Republican National Committee.

Alternate Introductions

Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller of Pennsylvania, and Mrs. George Mesta of Rhode Island will alternate in introducing the speakers and reading messages from friends and supporters unable to be present.

The formal opening of the convention will take place in the Crypt of the United States Capitol at 8 p. m. Friday, April 1, before the monument of the Pioneers of the Woman Movement. The ceremony will open with a pageant of the States arranged by Mrs. Marie Moore Forrest. Young women members of the Alpha Iota International Honorary Business Society, an organization joining with the National Woman's Party in endorsement of the Equal Rights Amendment will carry the State flags, each girl being a native of the State whose flag she bears. They will enter the Crypt to the music of "The March of the Women" played by a string orchestra and sung by a choir, both under the direction of Mrs. Florence Howard. Miss Jean Warner will be the soloist.

Following greetings from hostess branches of the National Woman's Party, represented by Mrs. Mabel Van Dyke Baer, chairman, from D. C. branch; Mrs. Alice M. Kachadourian, chairman, from Maryland branch; Mrs. Cecil Norton Broy, chairman, from Virginia branch. Senator Guy M. Gillette of Iowa, chief sponsor of the Equal Rights Amendment in the United States Senate, will deliver the principal address of the evening. Other speakers will be Representative Norris Poulson of California, Miss Anita Pollitzer of South Carolina, Dr. Mary Sinclair Crawford of California, Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller of Pennsylvania, Mrs. Florence M. Lynch of Iowa, Mrs. Margaret M. O'Riordan of Massachusetts, Mrs. Horace H. Sayre and Mrs. Thad Brown of the District of Columbia.

Music Between Talks

Speeches will be interspersed with music. While the choir is singing Beethoven's "Ode to Joy," the Junior Committee of the National Woman's Party, led by Miss Jane Lingo, Miss Harriet Johnston and Miss India Moffett, will pay a tribute to great women leaders who have worked for equal rights during a century, by laying flowers before the monument to the Women Pioneers. The ceremony will close with the "National Women's Party Song" and "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Registration of delegates and alternates to the convention will take place at Alva Belmont House on the mornings of April 1 and 2, followed by business sessions.

A banquet for delegates, alternates and guests will be held in the Hotel Washington at 7 p. m. on Saturday, April 2. Diplomats, members of both Houses of Congress, and distinguished guests, many representing the 32 national organizations which join with the National Woman's Party in indorsing the Equal Rights Amendment, will be present. Tickets are still available and may be obtained at National Woman's Party Headquarters, Alva Belmont House, 144 B st. ne. (ATlantic 3614).

A fellowship luncheon for delegates and alternates only, will take place in the private dining room of the United States Senate on Sunday, April 3. The fourth session of the convention will be held in the Hotel Washington that afternoon, commencing at 2:30 p. m. Results of the election of officers will be announced.

A highlight on the agenda will be a discussion of the international movement to raise the status of women, led by Miss Alice Paul, honorary chairman, World Woman's Party.

How to Remove Stains on Silver

I have a sterling silver plate which spotted after having been left overnight to dry. Neither additional washing or polishing has removed the water stains. Do you know of anything that would take them off?

B. B. W.

Since polishing has failed to remove the spots, I suggest you take it to one of the firms listed under "platers" in the Yellow Pages of the telephone book who do metal polishing. They have mechanical buffers which will likely remove the stains.

I would appreciate your advice on finishing the walls of our basement recreation room. These walls are very pretty knotty pine paneling, but at present it is hard to remove the soil around doors and the walls seem to be taking on a slightly grayish color in spots. Friends have advised us that the walls must be varnished or they will turn completely gray. I am not enthusiastic about a varnish finish, but I do want sturdy, easy-to-clean walls in a room which receives hard wear from growing boys; therefore, I will varnish if that is your advice. My favorite finish for wood surfaces is several well rubbed coats of wax, but I do not know if that would be sufficient to halt the encroaching gray. Also, I fear it might be difficult to keep up. I wonder about the advisability of linseed oil finish I once saw mentioned in your column. I am anxious not to darken the panelling as the room is already inclined to be dark. E. S. M.

Linseed oil or wax finishes are lovely on pine paneling, but since you are anxious for a wall which will be resistant to wear and soil I suggest you use varnish. All pine paneling tends to darken with wear and age, but there will be less darkening with a varnished finish than with the oil or wax. Before applying the finish go over the walls with a grease solvent to remove all soil and any wax which is present. For the first coat apply clear shellac. This will seal the wood so that not so much varnish is required on the next coat. When the shellac is dry sandpaper it to remove the roughness and apply a coat of glossy varnish. For the third and last coat you can use a glossy varnish, or if you do not wish a shine, use a semigloss or dull finish varnish for the last coat.

Please print instructions for washing a nylon sweater that looks like wool. M. C. H.

Before washing, lay sweater flat on a plain sheet of paper and draw around it to have a pattern of the original size. Now, prepare a bowl of lukewarm water and mild soap flakes. Whip into good suds and place the sweater into it, squeezing the sweater through the suds without lifting it out of the water. When clean, squeeze water out (don't wring), and rinse until rinse water remains clear. Squeeze out as much water as possible, lay sweater flat on a dry bath towel and roll—squeezing the roll to remove as much more water as possible. Now, lay the sweater on the pattern made before washing, patting and easing it into the exact shape. Let dry flat. Nylon yarn does not seem to have as much elasticity as woolen yarn—so care should be taken not to stretch it during the washing or drying.

To the reader who asked about sweetening butter that had gotten strong, I've had very good results with this method: Dissolve the strong butter in warm sweet milk. Chill and drain well. Add enough cold milk to wash thoroughly. Drain well and place in sterilized jars (without salt). Seal and place in dark cool place (not refrigerator), wrapping in brown paper or newspaper. It will keep well. You may add salt when you are ready to use it again. B. F.

her own satisfaction or "glory," in bland disregard of the male's aspiration to be lord of the union, as it were.

Or it may be that his love-attachment to you is a shadowy duplicate, unconsciously, of his thwarted child-worship of his mother, who, being a "mom," seductively played on his heartstrings, of course. Thus when confronted by your pregnancy, which he coauthored, perhaps he feels guiltily revolted, unconsciously—almost as if instinct accused him of "violating" an innocent kinship.

Wife's Attitude Somewhat Tactless

PERHAPS that is the clew to his paradoxical behavior, the reason why (1) he "reasonably" accepts and seems to enjoy parenthood, after the fact is accomplished; and yet (2) why his emotions gag at the functional aspects of gestation, a biologic phenomenon "imaginatively" associated with sexual activity.

During this period, he may feel shamed and self damning, unaccountably; with guilt-tremors quickened by his mother's angry denunciation of the first pregnancy. And the humiliation he visits on you may be slight and incidental, compared to the neurotic mortification he suffers.

For advice: it's not "unduly sensitive" to deplore Jim's attitude; but your driving insistence on procreation may be a bit tactless, from his viewpoint. In my opinion, you both need psychiatric help—Jim to get rid of his morbid "mom"-attachment and its sickly consequences; and you to arrive at mature integration, which enables a matron to be a complete wife, primarily—and in consequence, an ample parent, which is the natural order of love's fulfillment. Ignored, It Goes Away

Emphasis on Timidity Tends To Impress Fault More Deeply

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

It is inevitable that no matter what a child's behavior it will not remain static. Growth brings predictable changes in conduct as well as physical changes in the child. Temporary behavior if impressed upon the child by the parent's unwise attention to it, tends to be retained, as it gives the child a measure of distinction.

Mrs. T. W. writes, "We have two children, a girl of 3 and a boy of 18 months. My husband has been so helpful with them and has enjoyed them every minute. So far they have been just plain husky and we have had no feeding or behavior problems.

"Now, our girl has suddenly become anti-social. When we have visitors, either children or adults, she is inclined to hang her head or run from the room. Thus she puts her worst foot foremost.

"I think it is just a temporary phase, and should be ignored, but it annoys my husband dreadfully. She has always been very gay, has a sweet disposition and is affectionate and generous with her brother.

"My husband wants her to be as pleasant with visitors as she is with us. He has tried to make her say thank you and please with the result that she becomes whiny and sullen.

"Which one of us in right? If I am right should I interfere? I have always been so happy about his relationship with the children that I hate to criticize, though I think his methods, sometimes are less than perfect. I can't see much value in manners which have to be prompted and forced,"

You are in a dilemma, for it is vastly important to keep a father's interest in the home problems, even if his solutions are faulty.

Since he seems a sensible person, try to convince him to give hands-off a trial for at least a month and see what happens. If the child hangs her head, then turn away from her and allow her an opportunity to regain her poise. You display good manners, so that is a constant influence; but forced good manners defeat their purpose. They lack genuineness. Maybe the child will say thank you, but it has no meaning. You would do better to thank for her, until such time as she feels the sense of gratitude which is illustrated by these words.

One on the Aisle—

Where Is This Dreamy College?

By Richard L. Coe

AS AN ADMIRER of the theory, if not the practice, of education, I've been beguiled this year by the trend in entertainments with settings of school life.

On the stage—not, needless to say, of our Unnatural National—this season has seen Madeleine Carroll in "Goodbye, My Fancy," Frances Starr in "The Young and Fair" and Keith Winter's short-lived "The Rats of Norway." The screen has shown GI-billed collegians in "Apartment for Peggy," a rugged British school in "Mr. Perrin and Mr. Trail" and there are flashes of schoolrooms in "The Red Pony" and "The Boy Wth Green Hair," currently downtown.

Now arrives on the Palace screen a college that caps them all. This is "Mother Was a Freshman," a washout as a movie, but a killer-diller as a booster for Higher Learning.

Here you have Hollywood's dream college in tenacious Technicolor. You can tell it's in some never-neverland because though it's the fall term, the trees and lawns are spankingly spring-green. Not even the top brass at Fort Myer lives so handsomely as the professors of this faculty and as for beautiful girl students and earnest young males, even Winter Park's Rollins never saw such masterpieces of nature.

In this dreamy delight Van Johnson teaches Shakespeare. Van has this teaching business down pat. He limits his 45-minute periods to the time it takes to read a Shakespearean sonnet, which gives him leisure to write best-selling thrillers, which gives him money to support a cozy house, a bounteous table, an impressive cellar and a hearty cook. I assume everyone else on this model faculty lives as well for they aren't half as impressed by Van's handsome establishment as I was.

$3000 Scholarship

Obviously, then, all this talk of our underpaid teachers is just so much pink bilge and life is wunderbar on our educational front.

Loretta Young, you see, discovers near the end of summer that she's used up her dividends nearly a year in advance and that daughter Betty Lynn will not be able to go back to dear old Pointer. Pointer was founded by grandmother Abigail Fortitude, who left a scholarship of $3000 a year to any girl named Abigail Fortitude who wanted to go to Pointer. Loretta rather smartly figures that since her name happens to be Abigail Fortitude the $3000 will see mother and daughter through the year if mother turns freshman. So they set up a special College Board exam for mother and correct the papers in six minutes.

Naturally, for a matron of 35 to decide to go to college is considered wildly funny in Hollywood, ha-ha-ha. So Loretta takes down her upswept hair, lets it flap about her shoulders, exhibits a $20,000 wardrobe and is a campus sensation, taking away Professor Johnson from her daughter and eliciting wolfcalls from the sophistication that an Academy Award winner cannot be expected to hide.

Yes indeedy, Pointer is a real triumph for our educational system and if I could only find it, I'd get in line for one of those soft teaching jobs. If too many congressmen see this one, the education bill won't have a chance.

"Dagwood"

ARTHUR LAKE says he's just as baffled as the rest of us by the news that Penny Singleton isn't "the type" for Blondie.

"Matter of fact," says Arthur, "I've no way of knowing whether any day now I mightn't be told I'm not the type for Dagwood."

Penny, you know, has been playing Blondie in the movies and radio for over 11 years and recently was let out of her radio contract because she was "not the type" for Blondie. As John Crosby has pointed out, this has been mildly sensational news in the entertainment world.

Lake was here over the weekend for the Coast Guard Memorial Chapel fund drive sponsored by the Variety Club. He was pretty diplomatic about l'Affair Blondie, though one suspects money was the root of Penny's departure and that some radio mastermind decided on a humorous approach as an explanation.

Actually, Penny has nothing to worry about, for she's weathered a remarkable career. As Dorothy McNulty, she led the dance in "Good News" of 1929 that swept the land as "The Varsity Drag" and which is the inspiration for the funniest musical number now on Broadway, "Lend an Ear's" dance, "Doin' the Old Yahoo Step." A lot of people don't realize it, but when Yvonne Adair starts the "Yahoo" number, she's really imitating the McNulty girl who became Penny Singeton who became Blondie.

"And speaking of 'Lend an Ear,'" put in Admiral Reed-Hill of the Coast Guard, "don't forget that an old Coast Guard man, Gower Champion, who was in our "Tars and Spars" with Sid Caesar, staged the dances for 'Lend an Ear.'"

In the admiral, the world of the hucksters lost a mastermind to the Coast Guard.

"MOTHER IS A FRESHMAN," a 20th Century-Fox Picture produced by Walter Morosco, directed by Lloyd Bacon, screenplay by Mary Loos and Richard Sale, based on a story by Raphael Blau. At the Palace.

Tentative Ruling In Chicken-Theft Slaying Issued

A tentative coroner's ruling of "either suicide or justifiable homicide" was issued yesterday in the death of Henry M. Phillips, who was shot down Saturday by police bullets after first shooting himself, and then turning his gun on a Prince Georges County policeman.

Dr. J. T. Maloney, county medical examiner, said he was withholding final ruling pending return of State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie, who was away for the weekend.

An examination of Phillips' body, he said, showed death resulted from "multiple bullet wounds."

Five of six bullets which penetrated Phillips' body were fired by Police Pvt. William Wiseman, who said he shot in self-defense. The self-inflicted wound would have resulted in death, but the policeman's shots also resulted in fatal injuries, the examiner said.

The shooting occurred in Phillips' Ardmore (Md.) home, where the policeman had gone to question him about a chicken theft.

To Lecture Thursday

Dr. William Foxwell Albright, professor of Semitic languages, of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, will give an illustrated lecture on "Sinai and the Origin of the Alphabet" in McMahon Hall auditorium at the Catholic University of America at 8:15 p. m. Thursday. The lecture is sponsored by the Catholic University Chapter of the Association of University Professors.

Why I Write

If there is one who reads my lines . . . And one whose heart will say . . . That my mundane philosophy . . . Has helped him on his way . . . If there is anyone whose sky . . . Is brighter than before . . . And who by virtue of my words . . . May make a higher score . . . Then I shall know my life is not . . . Entirely in vain . . . Because I have contributed . . . Some comfort in the rain . . . And that is all I ever ask . . . To help the world consider life . . . And make the best of it . . . I only want to share my thoughts . . . With everyone on earth . . . In soft and simple phrases for . . . Whatever they are worth.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Good Morning, Judge; It's Arline Again

Les Finnegan, Washington editor of "North American Labor," has an interesting suggestion to make in connection with recent news stories that Arline Judge is about ready to divorce her sixth husband, and become eligible to hunt for number seven. Les says:

"Isn't it about time she was nominated for the Nubile Prize?"

PERSONAL NOTES

Mrs. A. J. Greene, 216 12th st. sw.: I think you're right about the caption on the Webster cartoon. I'm forwarding your card to the boss.

Mrs. D. S. Tillotson, 1415 Girard st. nw.: Sometimes I'm tempted to agree with you, and with countless other listeners who hate singing commercials. Then I remember how dreary the regular spoken commercials can get at times, and I wonder if there's much of a choice. I think either kind is okay so long as the sponsor doesn't try to beat us over the head with them.

OVERHEARD

He: Are you a man or a mouse?

Him: I must be a man—my wife is afraid of mice.

THOSE "BARGAIN" RATES

Fate of Interior's local golf courses is now ensnarled in a raging controversy. Whatever comes of it, the players are certain to get a better break.

That's a terrific victory for the thousands of local golfers who play upward of 700,000 rounds per year on these courses.

But before Congress finishes with its probe, I hope the gentlemen on the Hill take a second look at the bill of goods both sold them by C. Girard Davidson, Assistant Secretary of the Interior.

Mr. Davidson praises the present operator of the courses for providing these admittedly inadequate facilities at lower rates than are available elsewhere.

He studiously avoids any discussion of the important fact that the cost of the land is the biggest single factor in the cost of a golf course, or its operation. And this land has been paid for by Uncle Sam.

Any private owner or municipal owner who wanted to duplicate the facilities at Rock Creek, Anacostia, East Potomac, Fort Dupont and Langston would have to invest millions in real estate.

He'd have to charge higher rates just to meet his interest payments; and he'd have to charge still higher rates to have something left over for application on the mortgage (or bond issue, in the case of a municipality).

But Interior's golf courses cost the concessionaire nothing. The land is the property of the people. Anybody who COULDN'T operate at cheaper rates with this tremendous Federal subsidy would be a mighty poor manager.

When Mr. Davidson talks about our low fees, he ought to tell the whole story.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Please list me as one of those who are against transit radio.

Anybody who calls that music "soft" must be very hard of hearing.

Yesterday, as I was wondering how the driver could stand the racket and still concentrate on his duties—bang! We ran into a car, and damaged it badly.

It would be interesting to learn what the drivers have to say about this, and whether they attribute such accidents to the radio.

Mrs. H. R. Bernhardt
105 Galveston st. sw.

Dear Mrs. Bernhardt:

Yes, it would. But one accident, and one driver's opinion would hardly be conclusive. I don't think we'll really know whether the radio is a dangerous distraction until more drivers have been subjected to it for a longer period.

Bill.

UNEVEN HOURS

With so much order in the world
It seems a crying shame
That all the hours in the day
Could not be made the same.

Are measured out full weight.

The other 8 and 8.

Amm-i-dent

THE Ammoniated TOOTH POWDER

. . . a great new discovery for combating tooth decay

—as told about in the February Reader's Digest article, "New Brush-Off for Dental Decay"—Condensed from Better Homes & Gardens.

If you have visited your dentist recently you have probably heard of the great new developments in the long-standing fight against tooth decay!

One of the most significant is the introduction of an ammonium ion dentifrice. Ammonium ions, it has been proven, inhibit the growth of bacteria which cause decay. Their presence in a fine quality cleansing powder, like AMM-I-DENT, represents a real achievement in dental hygiene.

Pact Test Could Set Off War

By Drew Pearson

This column probably will be greeted by Izvestia and Pravda with screams of "Warmonger!" while some people in this country won't like it, either.

PEARSON

However, here are some of the European trouble-signs the American people should keep a weather-eye on at a period when the Soviet Union is more than ever on the spot.

With the conclusion of the North Atlantic Pact, two divergent reports reach Washington as to what the Soviet will do to checkmate the new alliance:

1. Foreign Minister Vishinsky will come to the U. N. meeting in New York to wage a new peace offensive aimed at making the United States appear to be belligerent and the Soviet a peace lover. The American Embassy in Moscow is convinced this will happen.

2. After insincerely waving the alleged olive branch, the Red army will then march into one of the North Atlantic Pact countries—probably Norway—in a move to break down the alliance before it has time to become strongly cemented. This could mean war this year.

Moscow, of course, would avoid the outward appearance of an invasion. A Communist government might be set up by a minority of Norwegians in the northern part of the country, which would call upon Moscow for aid. Thus the Red army would have an excuse to march in.

Moscow's Viewpoint

Meanwhile, some strategists in the Defense Department believe the scales are so delicately tipped that there is greater danger of war than any time since Dec. 7, 1941.

Two main factors are behind this pessimistic conclusion:

(a) With completion of the North Atlantic Pact, two lines of fortifications will extend across Europe—the armies of the West on one side, the armies of the East on the other. Eventually they may clash. Therefore, it might be better from Russia's point of view to precipitate the clash before the Western line is organized and fortified.

(b) The Politburo considers its main weapons to be people—plus the psychological and political practices that influence people. Recently the people of western Europe have been slipping from Moscow's grasp. Therefore if war is going to come eventually, from Moscow's point of view, it had better come now than later.

Meanwhile, the Russians have already built their line of defense across Europe. Running from the Baltic to the Balkans is a series of Red army concentrations, munition dumps and air bases. Another line farther east, running from Vilna to Kiev, marks the beginning of Russian munitions factories. And important factories are being moved east of that line to further escape the range of Allied bombers.

Opposite the first Soviet line, Moscow now knows that the North Atlantic Pact countries plan to build up a new Maginot Line, consisting of 35 European divisions armed with United States weapons. France is to organize 14 divisions, Great Britain 6, Italy 5, Belgium 3, Norway 2, Holland 2, with one each for Luxembourg, Denmark and Portugal.

The Atom Bomb

The chief factor which should deter Russia from war is, of course, the atom bomb. We have it and the Russians haven't. However, they may argue—with some truth—that the United States would never drop the atom bomb on Paris, London, Rome, Oslo, Copenhagen. And once Red troops moved into those cities, it would take years to pry them out. Meanwhile, bombing the great open spaces of Russia is difficult. They are a long way off and Russian cities are spaced few and far between. Next to Africa or Australia, the atom would be least effective on Russia.

But regardless of these pros-and-cons, it remains a fact that 15 divisions out of the 22 which the Red army has maintained in Siberia have recently been moved back toward Europe.

Today, United States troops are in Greece, just a few miles from the Iron Curtain, which is comparable to having Russian troops in Mexico. Norway's new alliance with the USA has the same effect on Russia as an alliance between Greenland and Russia would on us, while the United States Military Mission on the banks of the Bosphorus might be considered comparable to having a Russian mission at the Panama Canal.

It's necessary and important to look at the matter through Russian eyes, because they are the ones who will finally decide whether to wait until the United States has built up its new Maginot Line or to jump the gun this year.

All of which is not a pleasant prospect, and we hope it won't turn out this way. But in this world of hard-boiled realities there is no use playing ostrich.

If, on the other hand, the crucial year 1949 can be passed without war, then the odds will be increasingly strong for a long period of peace—a period which the American people could use to penetrate the Iron Curtain with people-to-people friendship.

Number 8 in a Series... Hecht Co. Personalities in the News

MR. LOMAN came to The Hecht Co. to do a special personnel survey and liked it so much here, he decided to stay a while. That was 21 years ago. Our pension plan and many of our personnel policies are the results of the 18 years Mr. Loman spent as Personnel Director of The Hecht Co. He was born in Harpers Ferry, W. Va.... schooled in Washington, D. C., and taught psychology at his Alma Mater, George Washington University. When asked about his favorite hobby, he replied, "People . . . they're wonderful."

Life Begins At Sixty-five . . .

Says William Loman, Executive Assistant to the General Manager of The Hecht Co.

What do the years after you're 65 hold in store for you? Hobbies you didn't have time for before? Peace and security so deserving after many years of work? Will life begin at 65? For many people at The Hecht Co. it will . . . because this is the era of the remembered man! The people you see above are but a few of our Hecht Co. family who served you yesterday. Today, they are enjoying a retirement pension from The Hecht Co. . . . a reward for years and years of service. Each month they receive the best remembrance of all . . . a check to provide real security in addition to their regular Social Security benefits. What's more, The Hecht Co. bears the entire cost of this additional retirement money. Each year over a quarter of a million dollars is placed into a trust fund for this purpose alone by The Hecht Co. Now you might ask, "Why should management spend all this money for their associates?" The answer is . . . to assure the future financial security of our associates. This money is neither a gift nor a charitable contribution . . . but something our associates earn and deserve. It's a known fact that people do a better job serving the public if they know that their efforts will result in financial independence later. Mr. Loman says that The Hecht Co.'s Pension Plan will provide a fuller, more secure life for many of our associates. And it's things such as these that make The Hecht Co. a great place to work . . . a great place to shop.
